Tracing John Randolph Webb

“Ladies and gentlemen, the story you’re about to hear is true. Only the names have been changed to protect the innocent,” and “Just the facts, Ma’am.” These were familiar phrases in most households in the 50s and 60s, including mine. My memory is that with two older brothers, I had to watch Dagnet when it was on TV or nothing at all. I can also remember, on more than one occasion, my brothers and I being asked the question whether we were related to Joe Friday, “aka Jack Webb.” My Dad had straight black hair and brown eyes, but any resemblance ended there. This question made me realize for the first time that people can have the same last name and not be related to each other. I am positive that Jack Webb was the first Webb that I was aware of in the world that was not part of my Webb family.

Over the many years that I have been researching, I had only a fleeting curiosity about Jack Webb’s genealogy; just enough to prompt me to scan through his bios on the internet and learn that he never knew his father and that he was Jewish, according to one source. Recently I decided to dig a little deeper and I would like to share what I found.

I knew that John Randolph “Jack” Webb was born on April 2, 1920 in Santa Monica, California, so I began my search by locating Jack and his mother on the newly released 1940 US census. In 1940 Jack was a twenty-year old men’s

Dear Project Members,

I would like to announce a new Webb DNA Group, the Isaac Webb [c1797 NC] DNA Group. This group has two members so far and traces its oldest known ancestor from North Carolina to Burnet Co., Texas.

I would also like to remind everyone, that when you have a change of email address and/or mailing address, to be sure that you not only let me know when your email address has changed, but also remember to update your contact information on your personal page at Family Tree DNA.

I have lost contact with the following members. If you have contact information for any of these kits, please let me know: #21809, #18770 & #26974 [John Webb 1740 VA]; #28489 & #183018 [John Webb Henrico]; #163684 [Jonas Webb]; #27845 [Merry Webb]; #23550 [Robert Burton Webb]; Kit #98141 [ungrouped]. Thank you!

Eileen

“At this point, I had to evaluate how much more time and energy I wanted to expend on proving Jack Webb’s line, and I realized that the best way forward was to try and get in touch with other researchers who might have information about Pleasant. But, there one last thing that I hadn’t done...”

clothing salesman and was living with his widowed mother, Martha E. Spencer and his grandmother, Emma S. Smith in Los Angeles. He appears to have been supporting his then forty-one year old mother, and sixty-two year old grandmother. Since my ultimate goal was to determine which Webb line Jack Webb belonged to, and armed with the knowledge that Jack’s father reportedly left his mother before Jack was born, I decided the best line of attack was to trace his mother and see where that led me.

This endeavor was made easier because her birthplace was Idaho. This bit of information was a relief since her maiden name was Martha Smith! I knew that Martha’s mother was named Emma because of the 1940 census, so I was able to find Martha, named Margaret, on the 1900 and 1910 Canyon Co., Idaho censuses. She was living with her parents, Frank J. and Emma Smith and her little brother Franklin. I was certain that this was the correct family since Emma Smith had stated she was born in Oregon on the 1940 Los Angeles, California census and this matched the 1900 and 1910 Idaho censuses for the birthplace for Emma Smith.

So, I knew that Jack’s mother, Martha, had lived in Idaho at least until 1910 and that she had Jack by 1920. I still had no indication whether she ever married Jack’s father and did not yet have his father’s name. The question also remained whether Martha had met Jack’s father in Idaho, or had she come to California and met him there?

Even though I had located Martha in Idaho in 1910, just by chance I decided to look for her in “any” census from 1910 to 1930 in California. Surprisingly, I found an eleven-year-old Martha in 1910 living in San Diego, California with her recently widowed mother, Emma E. Smith, and her five-year old brother, Franklin. Apparently, some time during the year of 1910, Frank J. Smith had died and his wife, Emma, moved her children to San Diego. This turn of events caused them to be enumerated twice in 1910. A look at this census didn’t give any indication that there were family living close by, but perhaps somewhere in San Diego they did have family.

This placed Jack’s mother in California as a young girl, so it made sense to presume that she met Jack’s father and married him in California. Searching the 1920 census for a Webb with a wife Martha or Margaret who was born in Idaho came up empty. It seemed likely that Jack’s father left Martha before the 1920 census.

I decided to come at it from a different angle and see if I would get lucky. Was there a marriage record for a Margaret Smith to a Webb that would fit? The question remained whether Martha ever married Jack’s father. It was obvious that Martha Smith had married another man by the name of Spencer after Jack’s birth and had become a widow by 1940. In my experience these searches more often than not are unfruitful, but to my surprise, I did find a marriage record. Not in California as I had expected, but in Superior, Mineral Co., Montana. Margaret Smith, born in 1899 in Caldwell, Canyon Co., Idaho, daughter of Frank J. Smith and Emma Strickland, married Samuel C. Webb born about 1890, on May 30th, 1917. So now I not only had a name, but the marriage record told me that Samuel C. Webb had been born in Henrietta, Clay Co., Texas and that he was the son of James H. Webb and Elizabeth Gambell. Had Samuel Webb and Martha eloped to Montana? Even today, Superior, Montana is in the middle of nowhere. The closest city is Missoula, which is an hour’s driving distance away. One clue is that Martha gave her residence as Boise, Idaho. Perhaps Martha's mother, Emma, had taken her family back to Idaho. Still, if this wasn't an elopement, why didn't they marry in Boise?

Now that I had Jack's father's name, Jack's father's birthplace and Jack's grandfather's name, I quickly checked the Texas census. I found Jack's father, Samuel C. Webb, living in his father's household in 1900 in Henrietta, Clay Co., Texas. According to this census, Samuel's father, James H. Webb, was born in Tennessee and James H. Webb's father was born in North Carolina. Samuel had ten siblings [one who had died] according to the census and it was interesting to note that the oldest son living in the household in 1900, Robert J., had been born in California in 1879. The rest of Samuel's brothers living in the household, James E., Wallace W., Benjamin T. and Farace G., were born in Texas, like himself.

The next challenge was to try and locate James H. Webb in an even earlier census. Other Webbs living in Clay Co. in 1900 weren't candidates for a father for James. He was fifty-three at the time and the only Webb older than him was a Mary Webb, age sixty-four. I knew that James was born in Tennessee about 1847, so if my luck continued to hold out, I felt I should be able to locate him in several earlier censuses. Of course 1890 was out, but in 1880 he was in his thirties and I knew that his son, Robert, had been born in California in 1879. As it turned out, I concluded that they lived in California between censuses, as I was not able to locate them there in 1880, so I went back to the Texas census.

I was looking for a James Webb or James H. Webb with the approximate age of thirty-three in 1880. There were only four Webbs living in Clay Co., Texas in 1880, but James was not there. I got a break when I remembered seeing a Felix Webb living in Clay Co. Texas in 1900. This Felix Webb, [grown and with a family of his own], according to the census, had been born in California and was the right age to be another son of James H. Webb. It was an unusual enough name that it would perhaps be easier to find him rather than a James Webb. If my hunch was correct, and he was a son of James, then I would find him in James' household in 1880. [Felix, according to the 1900 census, was born about 1872.] My hunch was correct, and I found Felix T. Webb, age 7 in the household of J. H. Webb, age 32 in Fannin Co., Texas. Also in the household were James' wife, Mary E. [Gambell]; a daughter, M. R. Webb; a son, R. J. Webb [Robert]; and another daughter, E. B. Webb.

Who were the other Webbs who lived in Fannin Co.? There were more than I would care to count. For my purposes I needed to narrow them down to the ones who were the correct age for a father for James, and this was assuming that James's father was actually in Fannin Co. The 1900 Clay Co. census placed James' father's birthplace as North Carolina, but in the 1880 census, James claimed his father was born in Tennessee.

The candidates for James' father were P. W. Webb, age sixty-two, born in Tennessee, and R. S. Webb, age forty-nine, born in North Carolina. There was also a Mary Webb, age fifty, born in Virginia who was old enough to be James' mother and was a widow. P. W. Webb seemed the most likely, so I checked for Webbs in Tennessee who might fit a P. W. Webb. There were at least two Pleasant Webbs living in Tennessee in 1870. Could one of these be P. W. Webb? One was too young, but the other, who lived in Polk Co., Tennessee, was about right age and his wife matched the wife of P. W. Webb in Fannin Co. TX. Both were married to a Mary C. To add to my certainty that I had the right person in Polk Co., Tennessee, I saw that a James F. Gambell lived two households away to this Pleasant Webb. I had already learned that Samuel C. Webb, Jack Webb's father, had stated on his marriage record that his mother was Elizabeth Gambell. I also noted that both Pleasant Webb and James F. Gambell had sons named Nelson in their households. Pleasant was looking more and more like he was the father of James H. Webb. James H., who would have been about 22, was not in Pleasants' household in 1870, but the 1860 Polk Co. census did show James in the Pleasant W. Webb household. He was recorded as James Webb, age 12. He even had a brother named Felix.

At this point, I knew things would get more difficult. Pleasant W. Webb was born about 1820 and was married and having children before the 1850 census. His father may have died before 1850. I went back to the 1880 Fannin Co., Texas census and checked Pleasants' father's birthplace: North Carolina. Pleasant W. Webb's birthplace had been given as both North Carolina and Tennessee depending upon which census I was looking at. Therefore Pleasants' father may have remained in North Carolina, or he may have gone to Tennessee. He may have been anywhere. I could assume Pleasants' father was born between 1780 and 1800 or so. The 1870 Polk Co., Tennessee census showed a John Webb, age 53, who was the correct age to be a younger brother to Pleasant. This John Webb was living several households from some Gambells, but there wasn't anyone living in Polk Co., Tennessee that was the correct age for a father for Pleasant, and perhaps also this John.

I went back to the 1860 Polk Co. census and only found one other Webb living there besides Pleasant. This was a widow named Easter Webb. She was sixty-four and born in North Carolina. Well, I thought, she could be Pleasants' mother, but the best path, I thought, was to find Pleasant in 1850 and see if anyone was living near or with him that could shed some light. I easily located Pleasant on the 1850 Polk Co. census, and there was an older man living in his household by the name of John Pannell. John Pannell was fifty-seven and was very likely Pleasants' father-in-law. There were no other Webb families in Polk Co. in 1850.

At this point I was feeling the trail run a little cold in terms of the census. I would, of course, check the 1840 Polk Co. census at some point, but I wondered if I could find a death record for Pleasant. I found his grave in the Rehobeth Cemetery in Fannin Co., Texas. His headstone stated that he was born on August 30, 1818 and died on August 4, 1885. In the same cemetery were some of his children by his second wife, Mary C. Runnion Webb, but I was ultimately not able to locate a death record.

I felt I had made fairly good progress, but my ultimate goal was still unattained. I decided I should see if any other researchers had already determined who Pleasants' father was. Sources that I found on the internet told me that Pleasants' middle name was Willis, but up to that point, I wasn't able to find any source for that name. I then found that many other researchers had determined that a Willis Webb, born about 1797 in North Carolina, was Pleasants' father, again, with no sources. Perhaps I could take this information and prove this myself?

I found that this particular Willis Webb had a marriage record in Blount Co., Tennessee. He married Anna Vaught on July 16, 1817. This marriage date was in keeping with the possibility that Pleasant was the first child of this couple. I found Willis Webb in the 1830, Monroe Co., Tennessee census index and it gave his family group breakdown. He and his wife appear to have had nine children in their household. Monroe Co., Tennessee...that sounded familiar. Then I remembered that this was where one of my distant Webb cousin's family had lived, and one of them was this same Willis Webb! Willis, William, Martin, John and Larkin Webb were all in Monroe Co., Tennessee in 1830. John Webb was John Roach Webb, who's DNA is represented by kit #14000, a member of the John Webb 1717 Richmond Co., NC DNA Group and a distant cousin of mine. Willis Webb m. Anna Vaught is believed to be John Roach Webb's brother. But was Willis Webb the father of Pleasant W. Webb? Pleasant was most certainly a family name in my Webb line.

I checked the 1840 Polk Co. Tennessee census and Pleasant W. Webb was the only Webb living in the county during that year. I decided that my best bet was to compile a list of his neighbors in 1840 and see where that led me. Elizabeth Cunningham, John Richie, Thomas Jones, Jeremiah D. Love, Fouris Maynor, Comador White, John F. Campbell, Hiram Yancy, Joseph Daugherty, Evan Campbell, James Morrison, Isaac Cagle, James M. Morrow, Hosea H. Jones, Thomas Morrison...

Three names popped out at me as: Thomas and James Morrison and Isaac Cagle. Was this the Thomas Morrison who married Frances Beard? I had the transcription of a bible record for his family. In it were listed a Fanney Webb b. 1822, a Milly Webb b. 1823, a Thomas Webb, b. 182_, a Saly Webb b. 1826, a Polley Ann Webb b. 1827, a William R. Webb, b. 1828, a John R__ Webb b. 1831, a James Pleasant Webb b. 1832 and a Huldah Webb b. 1834.... These Webbs were all descendants of John Roach Webb of my line. John Roach Webb, born about 1770, had a son, William, who married Martha Esther Morrison, daughter of Thomas Casual Morrison. I looked at the age range of the Thomas Morrison living next to Pleasant Webb in 1840, and it was clear it wasn't the same one who was in the bible record. Thomas Casual Morrison was born in 1774 and this other Thomas Morrison was born between 1800-1810. It was true, however, that the elder Thomas Casual Morrison was living in Polk Co. Tennessee in 1840, and was living there still in 1850. The younger Thomas Morrison, neighbor to Pleasant, appears to have left the county before 1850. This wasn't exactly what I had hoped to find. If Pleasants' neighbor had been the older Thomas C. Morrison, I would have had something of use, but I was left with just the possibility that this younger Thomas Morrison was somehow connected to the Thomas from the bible, but nothing solid. Most likely this younger Thomas Morrison was the son of James Morrison who was living close by and could have been Thomas Casual Morrison's brother.

The other name, Isaac Cagle [b. 1820-1830], was worth a try. A Mathew Kagle/Cagle was the next-door neighbor of my line's James Roach Webb [b. 1815] in Monroe Co. Tennessee where Willis Webb was known to have been. A little research told me that Isaac Cagle was actually the Rev. Isaac R. Cagle who married Amanda Morrison. I tried to find a connection between Isaac Cagle and Matthew Cagle and found that they possibly shared the same great-great grandfather. Not close enough to keep me on that path of inquiry.

A quick check of the names of the children of Pleasant W. Webb gave me a few things to go on. One son was named Nelson Webb, another, Edgar and then there was Felix [as well as the more common named sons' James H., Robert, John and George]. Edgar and Felix were not family names in this part of the tree, as far as I knew, but the name Nelson was. The name Nelson went way back in John Roach and Willis Webb's line to a Kerenhappuch Nelson b. about 1740. She was the mother of Francis Beard who married Thomas Casual Morrison of the bible that I previously mentioned. This was a good sign.

I knew that Willis Webb showed up in the 1830 Monroe Co., Tennessee census because of the census index, but I would have to scroll through the actual census, page by page, to find him and check on his neighbors. I decided instead to turn toward court records, land records and tax records, but my resources at that moment were limited. I had a court record showing Willis Webb as an administrator to the estate of Martin Webb in 1815. I had the marriage record for Willis Webb in 1817 in Blount Co., TN, and I had one land record for Willis showing he had obtained land in Ocoee District, the area of Tennessee that later became Polk Co. TN. I also found a court case transcription in Bradley Co. Tennessee that named in a suit what appeared to be some of Pleasants' children. A Willis Webb was mentioned, as was a Felix Webb. I didn't have the full record, so I had no way of knowing at that point what exactly the suit was about. At minimum, this court case implied that there was a Willis Webb that was connected to Pleasant W. Webb family, but I still hadn't found the smoking gun that proved that Pleasants' middle name was Willis.

I then found information that showed that Willis Webb had purchased land in McMinn Co. from Lewis Christian in 1836 with Thomas Barnett as security. Later, in 1839, a suit was filed in the McMinn Co. Circuit Court against Willis Webb and Thomas Barnett. Apparently, Willis Webb had moved to Bradley Co. TN after this suit was filed. It is believed he died in Bradley Co. I also found an 1840 deed in Monroe Co. that mentioned that Willis Webb had been the previous owner of the land that was being transferred in this deed:

88 25 Feb 1840 Samuel Johnston Sr. to W. Josiah Rowan, both of Monroe Co.; land in McMinn Co. granted to Willis Webb and transferred by him to Johnston. [McMinn Co., Deed Book F, pg 31]

Here were some new names associated with Willis Webb, and this led me to some crosschecking of Pleasant W. Webb's neighbors in 1850. I found that Hester Edwards, age 28, who lived several households away from Pleasant, was actually Esther Hamilton Johnston, daughter of John Hamilton Johnston and Keziah Rowan, and the granddaughter of Samuel F. Johnston, born 1766 and died 1846, Monroe Co., Tennessee. This Samuel F. Johnston matched the one who had received land from Willis Webb in McMinn Co. as recorded in the above deed. The W. Josiah Rowan in the deed was likely Samuel Johnston's son-in-law.

I decided to review what I had accumulated thus far:

1. Pleasant Webb was a common name in my Webb family. Our Webb family's earliest known Pleasant Webb was born about 1750.
2. Nelson Webb was a son of Pleasant W. Webb and the name Nelson goes way back in Willis Webb's line to a Kerenhappuch Nelson born about 1740. She was the mother of Francis Beard m. Thomas Casual Morrison [bible].
3. The name Willis Webb showed up in court records involving what appears to be some of Pleasant W. Webbs descendants in the 1880's in Bradley Co. TN.
4. Willis Webb owned land in Polk Co. [Ocoee] where Pleasant W. Webb lived in 1840 to at least 1870.
5. The granddaughter of the man that Willis Webb sold land to in McMinn Co. before 1840 was living several households from Pleasant W. Webb in 1850 in Polk Co.

By this time, I had forgotten why I was researching all of this in the first place! Oh yes, Jack Webb. I was trying to prove the line of Jack Webb and it was becoming increasingly clear that he was likely from my Webb line and that all those years ago, when I was a little girl and was asked whether I was related to Jack Webb, my brothers and I may have been correct to have said "yes."

Now if you have read this far, and have followed all of this, some of you may have seen an easier or more straightforward path to get where I had gotten up to this point, but research paths are not always as methodical as they should be and we can overlook things or take what, at first, appears to be the easiest path, only to be taken down roads that lead to dead ends. At this point, I had to evaluate how much more time and energy I wanted to expend on proving Jack Webb's line, and I realized that the best way forward was to try and get in touch with other researchers who might have information about Pleasant. But, there one last thing that I hadn't done, and that was to look at the neighbors of Willis Webb in Monroe Co. Tennessee in 1830. I had an index that told me Willis Webb was there, but as I previously mentioned, it would take my going page by page through the census to find him on the original. It wasn't too many pages in before I located Willis Webb and there, as plain as day, was the name of his next-door neighbor, JOHN PENNELL. Now, if you have been paying attention, John Pannell was Pleasant W. Webb's father-in-law!

I am hopeful that one of Pleasant W. Webb's descendants will eventually test their DNA. This will provide the final proof of my research. I suspect there are other researchers who could have provided me with the link between Willis and Pleasant W. Webb, but it was a rewarding challenge, and the conclusion of my research tells us that Jack Webb "aka Joe Friday" would, in theory, match the DNA of the thirty-seven members of the John Webb 1717 Richmond Co. NC DNA Group. Now, here is a challenge for you. How many of you can hum the theme song to "Dragnet"?

The Whitin Family: historical notes

Pg 122 Webb Manning [6] Lassell [5]

1 Christopher Webb came from England as early as 1645, settling in Braintree. He was a freeman in May, 1645 and proprietor in 1656, and died in June 1671. His will was probated September 2, 1671, and in it he leaves bequests to his son, Christopher, and to his wife, Humility, etc. Humility died November, 1687, aged 99.

2 Christopher Webb was born in England about 1630. He married January 18, 1654/5, Hannah Scott, the daughter of Benjamin Scott, and the marriage service was performed by Captain Torrey of Weymouth. Christopher was undoubtedly an inhabitant of Braintree until his death, except for a short stay in Billerica, where his son, Christopher, was born about 1663. In the probate of his will, he is called millwright. He was Town Clerk of Braintree in 1678, a commissioner for dividing John French's estate in 1683, and representative in 1689 and 1690. His will is dated April 14, 1694 and proved June 28, 1694. He gives his wife Hannah all the profit, improvement and benefit of his whole estate during her natural life, also all household goods and chattels, all personal estate, together with 2 cows, 2 oxen and his white horse. After his wife's decease the property was to be divided among his children. The inventory totaled L385 12s 6d. He died May 30, 1694, and Hannah survived him 24 years and died in 1718.

3 Samuel Webb was born on August 6, 1660 in Braintree, Mass, and died at Windham, Conn., on December 20, 1738/39. He married Mary Adams, daughter of Joseph Adams. The Braintree Records state "Samuel Webb and Marah Adams were married by Mr. Clarke Dec. 16, 1686." This marriage is also listed in the Chelmsford Records. Samuel removed with his wife and four children to Windham, Conn., in 1707. Here he purchased for L233 the "fifth" home lot at Windham Centre with the 1000 acre right belonging to it. However, Samuel probably did not purchase more than 300 or 400 acres at first. He was formally admitted an inhabitant of Windham on March 14, 1709. In the same year, he was chosen one of the "Listers" or Assessors and was also one of the School Committee. In 1713 he was appointed "Inn Keeper." He was evidently a man of substance for those days, and held the title of respect "Mr." before his name. He was styled "gentleman" I his inventory was L172 9s. 3d., but all his real estate had been already divided among his children by "deeds of gift." He died in Windham on February 20, 1738/39, age 79. His widow, Mary, died there on December 21, 1744, age 81.

4 Nathaniel Webb was born in Braintree on February 10, 1696. He married in Windham, Elizabeth Fitch on April 24, 1718. She was born on June 1, 1696, and was the daughter of Captain John Fitch. They had nine children. Nathaniel died in Windham on September 19, 1750. Mrs. Elizabeth Webb died July 3, 1780 in Windham, aged 84.

Webb-Sheaffe/Sheafe Family

Joanna [Sheaffe], m. William Chittendon [one of the Guilford company]

Jacob Sheaffe, b. Aug. 4, 1616; m. Margaret Webb [one of the Guilford company]

Jacob Sheaffe was one of the Guilford settlers and one of the 'seven pillars' of their church. His widow married Rev. Thomas Thatcher, of Boston; so he and Robert Kitchell, Rev. Henry Whitfield, their first minister, and William Chittenden, were brothers-in-law as well as co-emigrants."

"Medad Pomeroy was a lad of twenty-one when he left Windsor and went to Northampton in 1659. He had been trained as a blacksmith by his father and as such was a valuable man in the early communities, it not being unusual for a smith to be invited to settle in a town, being given land and other inducements to do so. Apparently, Medad was not the first smith to settle in Northampton as a John Webb with full blacksmith's tools was there earlier. The records do not show that Webb was actively employed, but in 1660, a year after Medad went to Northampton, the following resolve was passed: "John Webbs tools that Medad Pomeroy shall have on terms: a pair of bellows, an anvil, a hand hammer, one hammer, three pairs of tongs, a beak iron, a slice, a nailing stake, two chisels and one nailing hammer." The "terms" were not stated, and, 15 Dec. 1664, at a legal meeting, the town gave Medad Pomeroy the tools they had of John Webb for so long as he lived in the town, if he moved he was to leave them to the town, but if he died in the town, the tools were to be a part of his estate, provided he did the town's work. In 1670, it was voted to give him the tools without any conditions."

"...Mr. Bowers, a Mr. Buckingham occupied the pulpit for two years. His work was not pleasing. He was followed by the Rev. Joseph Webb as the sixth pastor, a graduate of Yale.

...Indeed there is little evidence of Presbyterianism in this church prior to Dr. Webb's pastorate. Scotch emigrants has been arriving for many years, and no doubt had much influence in making the church Presbyterian.

...The first appearance of the church in a Presbyterian Synod seems to have been in 1720 in Philadelphia. About this time, came the break in the congregation as dissent within the church grew and developed; and in the latter 1720's Colonel Ogden and a group of followers organized Trinity Episcopal Church. Mr. Webb withdrew from the church in 1736 after about eighteen years of service. During Mr. Webb's pastorate occurred the death of Azariah Crane, the youngest of the original settlers of Newark, who outlived all his colleagues."
