THIS VOLUME IS DEDICATED TO THE MEMORY OF
MICHAEL LANSDOWN, 1916 – 1999,
HONORARY TREASURER OF THIS SOCIETY
FOR FORTY-EIGHT YEARS UNTIL HIS DEATH

Michael Lansdown was a great-grandson of the founder of the Trowbridge Advertiser (predecessor of the Wiltshire Times). Another great-grandfather was William Millington, the Victorian Trowbridge artist. After a degree at Cambridge and war service he joined the newspaper in 1946 and retired as editor in 1981.

His knowledge of Victorian Trowbridge was encyclopaedic, and he wrote many pieces of local history in the newspaper, as well as several pamphlets on aspects of the town's history.

He managed the finances of the Wiltshire Record Society with a success probably unparalleled by any similar body. The enthusiasm and humour with which he reported the intricacies of postage, packing, and covenants, and the quirks of printers and booksellers will remain a vivid memory with all who served on the Society's committee.

PREFACE

For permission to reproduce in facsimile the copy of Monumental Inscriptions in their possession the Society wishes to express formally its thanks to the Wiltshire Archaeological and Natural History Society, and to that Society's Sandell Librarian, Mrs Lorna Haycock.

Mr Sherlock, the Editor of this volume, wishes to acknowledge also the help given to him by Jane Freeman, Clive Holmes, and Judith Maltby; and the staff of the Bodleian Library, the College of Arms, and the British Library. He is grateful too for the financial support of the Commonwealth Scholarship Scheme of the Association of Commonwealth Universities, and of the Hungerford and Associated Families Society. Mr Sherlock and I are both indebted to Lorna Haycock for her kind co-operation in enabling the facsimile to be made.

INTRODUCTION

In 1822 Sir Thomas Phillipps ordered his printer, Adolphus Brightley, to produce six copies of his transcriptions of the monumental inscriptions of Wiltshire at the Middle Hill Press in his home. By 1824 the work was complete, yet it passed almost immediately into obscurity. For the last 175 years, the handful of copies have remained largely unconsulted in Phillipps's collections and in a small number of libraries. Despite its inaccuracies and omissions the volume is of value to genealogists, those with an interest in Wiltshire, and historians of death and commemoration, not least because many of the epitaphs recorded no longer exist. This edition is intended to make Phillipps's work available to a wider audience, with the much-needed addition of an index.

SIR THOMAS PHILLIPPS

Thomas Phillipps entered the world on 2 July 1792 at 32 Cannon Street, Manchester, and was baptised at the city's church on 22 July 1792. He was born out of wedlock, but was raised by his father Thomas Phillipps (1742-1818) as his only son and heir. He had little contact with his mother, Hannah Walton (1770-1851) who in 1812 married Frederick Judd of London. The few surviving letters between mother and son relate to an annuity due to her until her death.

Phillipps grew up at 'Middle Hill', a property purchased by his father in 1794, near the town of Broadway, Worcestershire, where his grandfather had been a farmer. His early education was at the academy at Fladbury run by John Harward, prior to entering Rugby School in 1807. In 1811 he matriculated to University College Oxford, from which he graduated B.A. in 1815 and M.A. in 1820. At the death of his father in November 1818 he inherited the substantial Middle Hill estates. Due to their entailment under the terms of his father's will, he had access to their annual income only and not the capital itself, a source of later frustration.

His father's death allowed Phillipps to marry the woman who had captured his affections but who had incurred the disapproval of the senior Thomas. The wedding took place in February 1819, the bride being Henrietta, daughter of an army General, Sir Thomas Molyneux. The couple made their home at Middle Hill, not far from the Molyneux residence in Cheltenham. They had three daughters, Henrietta (1819), Maria (1821) and Katharine (1823), who prior to marriage would dutifully assist their father by transcribing manuscripts and preparing copy for his printer.

A. N. L. Munby, Phillipps's biographer, argues that the early 1820s were his happiest years. Besides a happy family life, Phillipps enjoyed social success: he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1820 and created a Baronet the following year, thanks to his father-in-law's connections. Financial difficulties soon followed, however, then in 1832 Phillipps's wife died aged 37. After a long, unsuccessful quest for a bride (with a large income to solve his financial woes), he was married a second time in 1842 to Elizabeth Harriet Anne Mansell, who survived him.

During his early years, Phillipps had begun collecting books and manuscripts, at the age of 16 compiling a precocious catalogue of the 110 volumes in his possession. Once he was settled at Middle Hill, this became his life's occupation, accompanied by a series of antiquarian endeavours. His manuscript collection was considerably enhanced by sojourns in continental Europe during the 1820s, where he was able to purchase voluminous quantities at auctions. By his death, Phillipps's 'vellomania' had led to his possession of the largest personal manuscript library in the world. He was well-known to all major booksellers and auction houses, and on two occasions had been arrested for unpaid debts as he consistently bought beyond his means. Besides collecting, Phillipps also maintained a private press at his residence and printed various manuscripts in his possession alongside his antiquarian researches. Most of these offerings appeared in such small numbers that they retain the status of manuscripts. No complete catalogue of his publications exists.

In 1862 the size of his collection forced Phillipps to remove to the larger Thirlestane House, near Cheltenham, formerly owned by Lord Northwick. Sir Thomas died here on 6 February 1872, aged 79. The Middle Hill estates passed according to their entailment to his eldest daughter Henrietta and her husband James Halliwell-Phillipps, the Shakespearean scholar. His second and favourite daughter, Maria, wife of the Reverend John Walcot, predeceased him in 1858. Due to Phillipps's estrangement from his eldest daughter and son-in-law, he left his personal assets – Thirlestane House and his library – to his youngest child Katherine, wife of the Reverend John Fenwick.

The Fenwicks did not have sufficient means to maintain such an enormous collection of manuscripts and books. The library was gradually dispersed in a series of auctions between 1886 and 1913, beginning with duplicate copies of books. Large purchases were made by foreign governments, ensuring the repatriation of important manuscripts. In 1945 the remainder of the collection, the contents of which could only be guessed at, was sold by the Fenwick family to the Robinson firm of booksellers, who deposited Phillipps's voluminous personal papers in the Bodleian Library.¹

WILTSHIRE HISTORY AND TOPOGRAPHY

Phillipps's interest in Wiltshire is intertwined with the beginning of his antiquarian and collecting career. He began his research on the county while at University, during visits to Ferne in Donhead St Andrew, the Wiltshire residence of his closest friend Charles Grove, where he calendared the family's deeds and compiled genealogies.² The county was one of only many interests, for Phillipps's time in Oxford led to an interest there as well, one which saw him employ William Kirtland in the 1810s and 1820s as a scribe in the Bodleian and nearby archives.³ Wiltshire became the primary region of interest from 1819, however, when he encountered the circle of antiquaries centred on Sir Richard Colt Hoare and his library at Stourhead.

In 1818, Colt Hoare was in the midst of completing his Ancient Wiltshire (1812–21), and was desirous of undertaking a modern history to match. In his pamphlet of that year, Hints on the Topography of Wiltshire, he urged local folk from the noble to the artisan classes to join with him in producing a multi-volume history of the county by adopting a parish or a hundred. Phillipps wrote offering to take responsibility for the entire northern half of the county, having already arranged to spend the summer of 1818 in the archives of Salisbury. Colt Hoare responded enthusiastically, and thus began a productive partnership which saw Phillipps acquire the status of Sir Richard's second-in-command of the Wiltshire history project over the following few years.⁴

Phillipps produced his first publication in 1819, a miscellaneous set of Collections for Wiltshire, privately printed at Salisbury. It set the tone for a series of similar volumes by either Phillipps or Colt Hoare published over the next twenty years, in which primary records from Wiltshire archives were transcribed and made accessible for the convenience of all researchers. For his part, Phillipps produced the Collections, the Monumental Inscriptions, and the Institutiones Clericorum in Comitatu Wiltoniae (Middle Hill, 1821–5), while Colt Hoare offered Repertorium Wiltonense (Bath, 1821) and Monasticon Wiltonense (Salisbury, 1822). Colt Hoare, meanwhile, also produced finished historical syntheses, most notable the first volume of the History of Modern Wiltshire, on Mere Hundred, in 1822, and a study of the Hungerford family, Hungerfordiana, in 1823. By this time he was fully convinced of Phillipps's commitment and ability to the history of north Wiltshire, referring to him in the history of Mere as, 'a most active, intelligent, and zealous coadjutor', and in correspondence as, 'Our Hero of the north'.⁵

Phillipps attended an early gathering of Wiltshire historians at Stourhead on 1 January 1821, along with Lord Arundell, Henry Wansey, Robert Benson and others.⁶ The group exchanged their printed work as soon as it came off the presses. Colt Hoare was always impatient for Phillipps's latest publications, urging him to organise and print his many notebooks, and to put pressure on his various printers to work faster. This was particularly true of the Institutiones, which were printed by J. A. Gilmour of Salisbury as slowly as a page a week over a four year period to Colt Hoare's frustration.⁷

The academic partnership was accompanied by a series of friendships. Wansey in particular kept in touch with Phillipps for a few years, encouraging him to visit whenever he was able. He also kept him informed of Colt Hoare's health, mainly his gout and deafness, for the latter made it, 'difficult to converse with him . . . [and] makes him fonder of his pen than ever'.⁸ All were keen for Phillipps to make his residence in Wiltshire, and kept on the lookout for potential properties, such as Blacklands near Calne, put up for sale through the owner's bankruptcy in 1821. Due to the depths of Sir Thomas's financial problems, these were impossible purchases.⁹ As it turned out, Phillipps was not as regular a guest at Stourhead and Salisbury as the other historians would have liked, and he had a tendency to fall out of contact with them; but they met his wife and daughter and became fond of his family.¹⁰

The collaboration between Sir Richard and Sir Thomas had reached its high point by the end of 1821, coinciding with the happiest times in Phillipps's life, when the two historians agreed to provide funding for a third collaborator to work alongside them. This was the Reverend John Offer, a relatively poor schoolmaster but a meticulous researcher. He was provided with £200 per annum by Colt Hoare and Phillipps, and worked alternately with his patrons in various archives. The resulting frenzy of Wiltshire research was to be shortlived, however, for in 1822 Phillipps decided to travel to Europe for an extended period, and the following year Offer died from a stomach obstruction.¹¹

Colt Hoare's concerns about Phillipps's commitment to his History of Modern Wiltshire appeared in April 1822 as soon as his 'foreign sojourn' was mentioned. He argued against any such venture, 'for depend upon it, you will gain nothing by a foreign sojourn – lose the comforts of an English home – and the great resources which your extensive collection will afford daily'. By June, Colt Hoare was urging Phillipps to take on and complete the history of a single hundred in north Wiltshire, fearing that his 'great Mass of Materials' would be forever neglected if he embarked on his 'continental progress'. Phillipps had made up his mind, however, partly as he wished to avoid his many financial problems, and departed in August 1822 for Switzerland.

In April 1823 Colt Hoare believed that his fear of being deserted was becoming reality, as Phillipps embarked upon his voluminous manuscript purchases, leading him to comment that, 'I hope your vellum-mania does not encrease – & that you will confine it unto Wilts'. Colt Hoare wrote to Phillipps's printer, Adolphus Brightley, to ensure that he was receiving any work from the Middle Hill presses, and the reply came that Phillipps was in Rome. Brightley concluded pessimistically that if Phillipps, 'sets his foot in the Vatican I am afraid it will be a long time before he returns'.¹²

Phillipps did not abandon his Wiltshire interests by any means, and returned to England at the end of 1823. Yet, just as Colt Hoare had come to suspect, he never published a volume of north Wiltshire history to match those produced on south Wiltshire, although he still maintained that this was his intention as late as the 1850s. He continued to edit and print privately various manuscripts related to Wiltshire, but it was once again one county among many which occupied his mind and pen.

Of greater concern to other Wiltshire historians was Phillipps's increasing reluctance to make his work available to others, particularly after Colt Hoare's death in 1838. When the Wiltshire Topographical Society was formed in 1839, he refused to participate, writing in 1843 that he was still committed to the history of north Wiltshire, and believed that individual efforts were better than societies, a sentiment typical of his eccentricity, intolerance and prejudice. In 1854 the Wiltshire Archaeological and Natural History Magazine commenced publication, its first issue including a catalogue of Wiltshire manuscripts in Phillipps's possession. He again refused to participate in this venture, withholding permission for such documents to be consulted or reprinted and instead inviting submissions to his own publications. Such attitudes often stemmed from personal grudges Phillipps held against other historians. He disliked the elderly John Britton, instrumental in the foundation of both the Wiltshire Topographical Society and the Wiltshire Archaeological and Natural History Society. Canon Jackson, one of the most prolific contributors to the Wiltshire Archaeological and Natural History Magazine, also incurred Phillipps's ire in 1862 by publishing his own, fully annotated edition of Aubrey's Wiltshire Topographical Collections which Sir Thomas had printed himself in a much criticised version between 1825 and 1838.¹³

Despite Phillipps's many publications in Wiltshire topography and genealogy, it is difficult to regard him as highly as his contemporaries. For, while characters such as Britton and Colt Hoare were not free of jealousy or obsessiveness themselves, they fostered collective, ongoing efforts. Moreover, Sir Thomas's many publications had a restricted circulation due to his tiny print runs, and were hampered by errors and omissions. Sir Frederic Madden, prejudiced by Phillipps's purchases of many manuscripts he had wanted to acquire for the British Library, wrote bitterly on Sir Thomas's death that: 'his greatest pleasure was to abstract a Parish Register! As to his publications, they are all but worthless from their inaccuracies. Learning or scholarship he never possessed in any degree.'¹⁴ Nevertheless, the Monumental Inscriptions of Wiltshire is a substantial work published at the zenith of Phillipps's career as a researcher, and is unique in its content.

COLLECTING MONUMENTAL INSCRIPTIONS

The Monumental Inscriptions did not begin as a cohesive project. In 1819 Phillipps began employing an amanuensis, William Hensley, to transcribe manuscripts in London, Salisbury and elsewhere, and, it would seem, to copy down epitaphs from certain churches in Hampshire. Once he had committed himself to the history of north Wiltshire, Phillipps decided to make full collections for each parish. Thus, Hensley was sent in the summers of 1820 and 1821 to note down the monumental inscriptions in churches across Wiltshire, and to obtain what information he could about manorial descents, clergy past and present, charitable donations and curiosities in each place.

William Hensley appears to have been in the employ of the Phillipps family prior to 1819, probably as a gamekeeper or manager on the Middle Hill estate in the service of Sir Thomas's father prior to his death in 1818.¹⁵ He was born at Broadway and baptised at St Eadburgh's church on 6 October 1790, the eldest child of Thomas and Anne Hensley. A note by Phillipps amidst his correspondence with Hensley for 1821 states that, 'This Man was my Amanuensis & afterwards became an Architect & made much money'. He was employed by Phillipps as a scribe throughout his life, as was his son, Christopher French Hensley, from 1855. The Hensley family, whose members may have been tenants of Sir Thomas, was still resident in Broadway in the early twentieth century.¹⁶

In 1820 and 1821 Hensley worked according to Phillipps's orders, though these were somewhat sporadic and unpredictable, and on more than one occasion he had to beg for more money or return to Middle Hill to await further instruction. He usually stayed at a public house in the main town of a hundred and travelled each day to visit up to four or five different churches. At night he would write up his findings and as he completed two folio sheets would fold, seal and post them to Sir Thomas at Middle Hill or Salisbury, resulting in several letters each week. Some of these were pure epitaphs, but others contained small notes begging money or further orders. He began in May 1820 with Cricklade Hundred, then Malmesbury, before joining Phillipps to work jointly in Salisbury archives in June. In September he took up lodgings at the Castle Inn, Devizes, and by October was at Avebury. The next collecting season ran from May to October 1821 and included the south as well as the north of the county, proceeding from Chippenham to Highworth, Swindon, Burbage, Devizes, Melksham, Bradford, Trowbridge, Westbury and Warminster.¹⁷

Hensley's letters to his employer provide a unique and entertaining window into the daily grind of antiquarian pursuits in the early nineteenth century. He was required to be a jack of all trades, not only transcribing epitaphs, but also inscriptions on bells, and as need arose executing brass rubbings or drawings of curious monuments.

15 Hensley reports his activities as a gamekeeper at Middle Hill in PRMS b.112/97-98 (William Hensley [WH] to TP, 9 October 1822), c.405/137 (WH to TP, 8 December 1818), c.412/225-6 (WH to TP, 11 January 1823).

16 PRMS b.110/110.

17 Hensley's letters containing the epitaphs are preserved at PRMS c.270 (1821) and c.313 (1820). What appear to be his original notebooks, in pencil, are at PRMS c.236-243. These latter notebooks were used to prepare the printed edition.

In October 1820 he wrote from the Red Lion Inn at Avebury noting that he had made, 'the Sketch of 4 Saxon Arches two Brass figures and some curious fonts'. Likewise, from Chippenham in May 1821 he reported that, 'I have taken some Copy's of some handsome Brass figures from Lacock Church of Robt and Elizth Baynard & 17 children'.¹⁸

Health, and the weather, were prominent concerns as was Hensley's fear of displeasing his infamously short-tempered employer. In June 1820 he wrote from the Good Will Arms at Swindon, concerned that Phillipps was disappointed with his rate of progress:

I have been ill great part of the time as I have been in Wilts but for this last week past I have been better, and live in hopes of Continuance of it, but it have made my work seem very hard, but I think I shall enjoy my usual state of health again. I do not understand you by giving up my employment whither you mean because of me being ill or whether you think me not capable of collecting your Inscriptions, so far as my education I have done to the best of my knowledge for you . . .

At the end of October 1820 he begged to be allowed home, hoping Phillipps 'will not persist in my Collecting any more this Season, as it is so far advanced. I taken a bad cold in my bones the second day at Marlbro St Mary's and have been unwell ever since . . . I find the Churches very damp'.¹⁹

The constant travelling could result in loneliness. Hensley complained in 1820 of always staying in lodgings, which also incurred extra costs for Phillipps: 'I shall go on as long as I have a sixpence and then walk home . . . I cannot find any friend in a strange place except I have one in my pocket.' He expressed similar sentiments the following year: 'I shall take it a pleasure to travell any part of England for you, But I hope you will consent to me to come home one day or two to see my friends'.²⁰ Unexpected difficulties on top of these ordinary hurdles caused Hensley to joke about his sanity in 1819: 'But I have all the misfortunes as can be with my Box, for when I open'd it there was the jar of ink broke and run all over it. I think if I have any more trouble with it I shall stand in need of a strait waistcoat'.²¹

While Phillipps himself may have had strained relations with the likes of John Britton, who during these years was researching the third volume of The Beauties of Wiltshire, it was his amanuensis who had to deal with the competition in person. Hensley first became aware of Britton in 1820, writing that, 'A gentleman by name Britton is Collecting for History Chippenham and north Damersham Hund which part of it is in great forwardness for the Press. And is Enquiries are the same as yours'.²² In 1821 Hensley encountered or nearly missed Britton on several occasions, and began to wonder if his work was futile. At Christian Malford in May 1821 he realised, 'every day I still witness that I am walking the ground that Mr Britton previously have done', and the clergyman, 'told me that it was a pity that I interfered into his Collections'. A postscript added, 'Write to me as I cannot work with any courage, unless I know whether you wish me so to do, as he is writing the same'. A further note showed resentment of Britton's method of getting the clergy to do the transcribing, for 'he gives them a Call, and pays them a Morning visit, & receives their Copies good Morn and his Collection has made'. Phillipps's reply commanded Hensley 'to go on even if he met Britton himself'.²³

Hensley's next letter showed that Britton's spectre still haunted him. He attempted to meet Britton at Nettleton, but missed him, and was then annoyed to discover that the minister at Colerne wanted Hensley to pay a fee for permission to copy down the epitaphs there. He vented his anger in poetry:

'Ev'ry day as my travells advance
I expect for to meet with that deaf one
But as far as my knowledge or strength will admit
I never will yeild to one Britton.'²⁴

The gentleman concerned shortly wrote to Phillipps, opening, 'I have often heard of you during my late Tour in Wiltshire . . .'.²⁵ Not all such encounters were competitive. Hensley was pleased to meet Richard Colt Hoare at Malmesbury Abbey and receive extra help in May 1820, for Sir Richard, 'directed his discourse to me respecting the difference of Architecture in the Arches'.²⁶

The antiquarian competition was not, in the long run, a stumbling block for either Hensley or Phillipps. A major complaint was the lack of local historical knowledge amongst the clergy, or indeed amongst any of the local gentry:

I have been very unfortunate in meeting with Clergymen, I have not met with but one Rector or V as yet & two Curates, in general the diligent Curates Serve 3 or 4 Churches in one Day, and they now as much about it as I do, on Monday last I was at Great Somerford where I met with the present Rector & he told me that he should be happy to give all the Infirmary he could and which he did, which I asked him if he could tell the Glebe at Little Somerford but he could not, but his answer was, that the best way to have all the Glebes Correct was to get a Copy of them at the register Office Sarum, where they may all be had, (the Revd S Demainbrey) Yesterday I went to Hankerton where I could get no Intelligence of the Glebe nor register nor else, I was informed that the Rector keeps all at his house at Crudwell which I went & Collected all Inscriptions and then to go to the Rector which I found all under his care and he was at Bath & I made great Inquire in the Village with the upper Class of men but no true Account could I get, for I general Ask these thick headed people twice or thrice and very rare to find one but what deviate in their discourse and know but little at last, as I do not like to write after all men, and I have made my self very ill in fretting about it as I cannot collect as I wish, if I could meet with any Intelligent Clergymen or others it would be a pleasure to me, & greater satisfaction to you.²⁷

By the end of 1821, Hensley had finished his work of collecting monumental inscriptions and could move on to other tasks closer to home. Unforeseen difficulties with clergy, and a lack of money on Phillipps's part, meant that details such as manorial descents had not been compiled, but the epitaphs were recorded and ready for the Middle Hill Press.

PRINTING AND DISTRIBUTION

From 1818 to 1822 Phillipps used the services of a variety of printers, chiefly in Salisbury or London. He decided to employ his own, and placed an advertisement in The Times in December 1821, seeking someone with a knowledge of Latin who had sets of Saxon characters and Latin abbreviations. This solicited the application of Adolphus Brightley, a native of Bungay, Suffolk, who was appointed to the post, taking up residence at Middle Hill in August 1822. He remained in Phillipps's service until December 1825. Although his time at Middle Hill was generally pleasant, his arrival and departure were not. In 1822 no residence was prepared for Brightley, Phillipps having decided that he could live in the dilapidated Tower on the estate which would later feature on the frontispieces of Middle Hill publications. Brightley immediately wrote from the inn where he was staying temporarily to Sir Thomas in Paris, complaining about the appalling living conditions, desiring to return to Suffolk, and stating his disillusionment with the entire project. Once the accommodation problem was solved, however, Brightley came to enjoy his 'pretty little office in the octagon room' at Middle Hill and began to work productively. Phillipps soon discovered that he had to keep his printer occupied and thus began his tendency to print material hastily and unedited. Brightley would depart from Middle Hill three years later primarily because he was owed £216 by Phillipps. He had received only £30 from Phillipps between May 1822 and April 1825 towards bills of £191, much of which were incurred in the production of the Monumental Inscriptions.²⁸

The printing of the Wiltshire epitaphs was Brightley's first major task. He began in September 1822 with Chippenham Hundred, having purchased one hundred sheets of paper for the purpose the previous month. By November Phillipps was able to tell Colt Hoare that the work was well underway, and Sir Richard replied saying that, 'you do right to print (however incorrectly) the inscriptions, as they will assist you much in visiting the Churches'.²⁹ In April 1823 Brightley sent the following report to Phillipps, now in Berne:

I am still going on with the Epitaphs, expect to finish them in June; I have not gone on so fast as I expected with them, principally owing to the incorrectness in which they are taken – I print them nearly as I find them, – I cannot correct them although I know they certainly must be wrong. I began them in the same manner as they were given to me, that is, by beginning a book and going through with it without paying any respect to placing the parishes in the Hundreds to which they belong – I find there is no regard paid to that in the collecting them, for one parish may immediately follow another, which may be situated widely different from each other. I received a letter from Sir Richd

Hoare with your commands for a copy of what I have hitherto done. But it being the northern instead of the southern district, that I have been about, – he wished me instantly to print the latter, and send him portions of it as I get it done, for him to correct upon the spot. I have sent him the Hundreds of Amesbury, Elstub and Everley. He have not had a copy of what I had done previously. “I hope (he says) I shall live till Sir Thos returns, that we may prosecute our researches in the northern district together.” He kindly offered to send me his little printed account of the Hundreds and a guide, not having began then in a regular order it will now be of little use, I had only the assistance of a small Map to arrange them from. I chose rather to print them in the order as I find them, than to follow the uncertainty of that. When they are finished I will print an alphabetical Index, they will then be easily found. I have printed six copies perhaps I ought to have printed more but you did not tell me how many you would wish. Should be sorry if I have not printed as many as will be wanted . . . The Epitaphs, I doubt you will find sadly incorrect I followed the copy, but wished you could have overlooked them . . . I am glad I am not in Broadway, the place and people I cannot bear: the beautiful walks and situation of Middle Hill suits my ideas of retirement and study. I will do anything to stay . . .³⁰

Colt Hoare’s interference in the project did not cease, for, having heard nothing out of Brightley for some months, he wrote to Phillipps asking whether, ‘Brightley has finished the Monumental Inscriptions – if so – beg him to send me the remainder since his last’. This caused Brightley to write directly to Colt Hoare, apologising for the delay on the grounds that he had been expecting Phillipps to return from Europe every day for the previous two months, when new orders for copying and distribution could be issued.³¹

From this correspondence it appears that the epitaphs for north Wiltshire – some 286 pages – were printed between September 1822 and April 1824. Those for south Wiltshire, comprising 108 pages, were probably done in 1823 as Colt Hoare requested. The dates watermarked on the volume’s paper (from Clarke & Horsington or Bitton Mills) range from 1820 to 1823 for north, and 1822 alone for south Wiltshire. As Brightley promised, an (incomplete) index to the parishes covered was added, and a title page printed depicting the Tower at Middle Hill with the words: ‘Monumental Inscriptions in the County of Wilton. Edited by Sir T. Phillipps, Bart. Typis Medio – Montanis, in Turre Lativiensi Adolphus Brightley Excudit. 1822.’³² A secondary title page, with a seemingly erroneous date, reads simply ‘Monumental Inscriptions in Co Wilts. – 1821.’

A mere six copies of the volume were printed, and it was fortunate that there were even this many, for Colt Hoare had protested in April 1822 that, ‘If you print your MSS Collections, pray say six vice three or even more – for the additional expense will be only that of paper’.³³ In consequence the volume is one of the great rarities emanating from the Middle Hill, and certainly the rarest of the more substantial publications.

One copy was presented to Colt Hoare at Stourhead, literally as it came off the presses. This copy is preserved in the Library of the Wiltshire Archaeological and Natural History Society at Devizes, and is the basis of this edition. Another copy was presented on 5 April 1827 by Philipps himself to the Library of the College of Arms, London, where it remains to this day.³⁴ At least two copies stayed in Philipps's library. One of these was disposed at the first of the Sotheby auction sales of duplicate items in the library arranged by the Fenwicks in 1886, selling as lot 2436 for an impressive £14 10s.³⁵ The other remained with the library and passed into the hands of the Robinson booksellers in 1945, from whom Harrison D. Horblit acquired it. Horblit had compiled one of the most comprehensive collection of Philipps books by his death, including those from the library of the Earl of Lindsey. The entire collection, including the Monumental Inscriptions, is now housed at the Grolier Club, New York, to whom it was presented by Horblit's widow.³⁶ Other copies found their way to the British Library (in 1883) and the Bodleian Library, Oxford; the latter may be the one sold in 1886.³⁷ The whereabouts of the sixth copy is unknown.

All copies except that in the British Library are interleaved with blank pages. The Bodleian and Grolier copies contain various corrections in Philipps's handwriting, including pedigrees worked out on the interleaved pages using the content of the epitaphs. The Devizes copy contains similar corrections in Colt Hoare's hand. No copy shows signs of extensive consultation.

CONTENT AND SCHOLARSHIP

Madden criticised all of Philipps's publications for their shoddy transcribing, editing and printing, and Brightley expressed his concern at the perceived inaccuracies in Monumental Inscriptions. Both men had some reason for their views. The volumes of the History of Modern Wiltshire include epitaphs from each parish which can be used to check the accuracy of Philipps's edition, and some discrepancies are immediately noticeable. In the parish of Amesbury, for example, Colt Hoare includes a number of flat stones missing in Philipps. Yet, conversely, Philipps includes the heraldry of the larger monuments which Colt Hoare ignores. The two versions do, however, agree on the content of each inscription although the use of abbreviations and layout differs.³⁸ To Philipps's credit, his correspondence with Hensley shows his insistence on transcribing all Wiltshire monuments himself, irrespective of the work undertaken simultaneously by Britton or Colt Hoare.

There are undoubtedly mistakes, many of which are the result of Hensley's difficulty in reading old or worn epitaphs in the poor light inside churches. Yet, for north Wiltshire at least, there is now no other source for many of the inscriptions which have long since vanished. The dates cannot be accepted with confidence, but, where survival permits, the original epitaph or parish burial register can be used for verification.

The chief value of the Monumental Inscriptions remains: there is no other publication which can act as a guide to the monuments of Wiltshire extant in 1820–21.

Errors of transcription aside, the volume's chief deficiency is the omission of some major sites of monumental construction. Salisbury Cathedral is not included, though it might be excused on the grounds of its unique status in the county. Phillipps may have known James Harris, who in 1825 would produce a volume recording the epitaphs therein.³⁹ A number of other churches are missing, mostly in the Swindon area. Notable among these is Lydiard Tregoze, which contains some of the county's most famous tombs in the form of the St John monuments. The reason for this is suggested in a collection of nineteen letters written by J.W. Osborne to Phillipps between 1819 and 1821, now preserved in the Wiltshire and Swindon Record Office. Osborne had been employed by Phillipps as an amanuensis, but appears not to have been paid for his labour. He took down the inscriptions of several churches near Swindon, including Lydiard Tregoze, and it may be that he withheld the transcripts from Phillipps until he could be assured of payment.⁴⁰ There are still inexplicable omissions. Transcripts of the monuments of Clyffe Pypard church taken in 1820 exist in Phillipps's notebooks in the Bodleian Library, yet this parish does not appear in the Monumental Inscriptions.⁴¹

The epitaphs included are overwhelmingly from the eighteenth century. This is not due to a poor survival of earlier gravestones, but to the huge upsurge in monumental commemoration which began in the 1660s, culminating in the foundation of public cemeteries in the nineteenth century and crematoria in the twentieth. Hensley did not normally transcribe monuments in churchyards, restricting himself to those inside churches. Exceptions are the churches in Highworth hundred, and the parishes of Chute, Great Bedwyn, Mere, Poulshot, South Marston, Stratton St. Margaret and Wanborough. Tombstones in churchyards have been recorded this century by the Wiltshire Family History Society although no transcriptions have been published.

Phillipps's work with its limited coverage and occasional errors still sits comfortably within the long-established antiquarian tradition of recording and sometimes publishing epitaphs. John Leland noted many monuments, including a number in Wiltshire, as early as the 1530s in his travels across England, and the manuscripts of heralds from Elizabethan times onwards include many notebooks of monumental inscriptions and heraldry. William Camden was the first to publish a collection of epitaphs, in his account of the tombs of Westminster Abbey, printed in 1600.⁴²

Of Camden's many contemporaries and seventeenth-century successors, including the likes of William Dugdale, Henry Holland, and Anthony Munday, the most prominent was John Weever. Weever's Ancient Funerall Monuments (1631) was a 900-page volume listing epitaphs in the dioceses of Kent, Rochester, London and Norwich. This book is a useful comparison for Phillipps's work, as it has been subjected to similar criticism due to its inaccuracies and omissions. Weever has a major advantage over Phillipps in that the book was circulated in large numbers in the seventeenth century, and in the style of writing which embeds each epitaph within a narrative. Nevertheless it is chiefly prized for its preservation of hundreds of monumental inscriptions which have long since been destroyed, a value which exists equally in Phillipps.

A more pertinent comparison is the set of Gloucestershire Collections by the eighteenth-century antiquarian Ralph Bigland. This was clearly a model for Phillipps's vision of his history of north Wiltshire, as Phillipps himself attempted the completion of Bigland's project and left directions in his will for the work of publication to be finished.⁴³ The Monumental Inscriptions contain traces of Bigland's influence in the inclusion of the names of contemporary clergy and manorial lords, or the sporadic listing of donation tablets. Bigland's work as published in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries benefited from a broader circulation than Phillipps allowed himself, and from the wider scope of coverage for each parish. Yet again, however, its primary value is the transmission of gravestone inscriptions into the more durable medium of print, and it also provides a first port of call for those interested in epitaphs or in Gloucestershire history.

Phillipps's Monumental Inscriptions is indeed worthy of fresh consultation if only for its preservation of the material past, and as a source of reference for Wiltshire historians. It is not merely a dry record of names, dates, and places, facts which form the bulk of most epitaphs. A number of the epitaphs are highly colourful, many in English, some in Latin and a few in more than one language. Some are in rather poor taste, like that of Hester, wife of Henry Martyn, who died in 1667, ending: 'If women all would live like thee, Then Men with Wives might happy be' (p.109). A few are of a literary quality, most notably George Herbert's poem 'Sacred Marble safely Keepe', inscribed on the monument of the Earl of Danby who died in 1643.

Several epitaphs record remarkable people and their deaths. One which continues to cause surprise today is that of Hannah Twinnoy, who in 1703: 'was a servant at the White Lion Inn, where was an Exhibition of Wild Beasts, and amongst them a very fierce tyger, which she imprudently took a pleasure in teasing, notwithstanding the repeated remonstrance of its keeper' – and was subsequently torn to pieces (p.118). Then there is Hannah Hyde, died 1787, whose 'voice by nature was so wrought, To shake a D, a fourth above Alt' (p.158). Some inscriptions record events of political significance, such as Gyles Eyre, a Parliamentarian in the English Civil War who was, 'imprisoned for refusing to pay the sum of £400 illegally demanded of him' (p.355). The clergyman John Rolte wrote a fine epitaph for Henry Season of Bromham, died 1775, which called into question the very existence of monuments and inscriptions (p.229).

THIS EDITION

This edition of Phillipps's Monumental Inscriptions is a reproduction of the original in facsimile, using Colt Hoare's copy now lodged at Devizes. It follows the original pagination for North Wiltshire, but this is followed in a continuous sequence by South

⁴³ Bigland's work was finally completed and printed by the Bristol and Gloucestershire Archaeological Society as Brian Frith, ed., Bigland's Gloucestershire Collections, 4 vols., Stroud, 1989-95.

Wiltshire, beginning at p.289 (Phillipps had begun numbering afresh for South Wiltshire). The few errors in page numbering are corrected, all in North Wiltshire, on pp.87 (81), 100 (96), 166 (164), 167 (163), 168 (162) and 184 (180). Manuscript notes and corrections present on the text pages of Colt Hoare's copy have been retained, but the sometimes heavily annotated interleaved pages have not been reproduced. Readers should be aware that the quality of the original printing leaves much to be desired, and many of its shortcomings are reflected in the facsimile. The need to minimize damage to the original volumes has also affected the quality of reproduction on some pages.

Besides providing wider distribution, an over-riding reason for reprinting the Monumental Inscriptions is the need for an index, without which it cannot function as a reference work. All names of persons and places within the text have been indexed, including noble or ecclesiastical titles, but not corporations. Surnames and place names have been grouped under the predominant or official spelling and cross-referenced. The most common first names have been abbreviated, and a list of these with the variant expansions is provided at the beginning of the persons index. (Names on Latin epitaphs have been rendered into English for the purposes of indexing.)

The Monumental Inscriptions of Wiltshire was one of Sir Thomas Phillipps's most notable publications. It was conceived and executed during his happiest years of family life, and his most active period as a student of Wiltshire history. The history of its production itself sheds light on the methods and experiences of early nineteenth century antiquaries and topographers. Although in its poor distribution, its errors and omissions, it retains traces of Phillipps's infamous tendency to rush into print, it remains one of his longest works and is worthy of a wider audience. Together with its index, it is now a valuable reference book for local historians, genealogists and biographers.

To bee sett on man whose strength is dust:
Consider well thye brittle stage on earth,
How Everye moment subject unto death.
Amend then whats amisse, thye sins for sake,
Repent in tyme, peace in thy conscience make,
Death spareth none, yet when hee strikes, or how,
For man Before hunde, tis too much to know.

DONATION TABLETS.

Against the S. side of the S. aisle.

In the year 1630, Mrs. Elizabeth Hawkins, of Chippenham, gave by Will to the Bailiff of the Borough of Chippenham, in the county of Wilts, ten Pounds, the Interest to be paid annually to Six poor Freemens' Widows on Candlemas Day, by the Bailiff of the said Borough.

In the year 1735,

Sir Francis Popham, Baronet, by Deed gave to the Bailiff of the Borough of Chippenham for the time being, and other Trustees, certain lands at Foxham, and in Dale Mead in the Parish of Christian Malford, in the County of Wilts; the Rents and Profits to be paid to such poor Freemen or free Burgesses of the said Borough of Chippenham, as the said Trustees should yearly, between the Feast Day of St. Michael the Archangel and the Feast of All Saints, appoint.

These Lands are now Let at £.22 per annum, and the Rent is divided into Forty Shilling Donations, and given to poor Freemen annually.

In the year 1642,

Mr. Henry Smith, formerly a Citizen and Silversmith of London, left an estate at Lonney, near Gloucester, to the Governors of Christ's Hospital, in trust, for the use of 23 Parishes in different parts of the Kingdom, in such proportions as the Donor directed, one of which was Chippenham, in the County of Wilts. The following is a clause in Mr. Henry Smith's Will: Item, The said Henry Smith doth further by those Presents limit and appoint and declare his intent and meaning to be, that the said sums of Money given limited and assigned, or appointed to or for the Relief of the Impotent and aged Poor of the said Parishes respectively, shall be distributed, bestowed, and employed in Apparel, of one colour, with some Badge or other Mark, that the same may be known to be the Gift of the said Henry Smith, or else in Bread, or Flesh, or Fish, upon each Sabbath-day publicly in the Parish Church of each of the said Parishes.

This Estate is Let at £.900 a-year, and the proportionate part of the Rent, received by the Churchwardens of Chippenham, distributed in Great Coats for the Poor annually.

In the year 1664,

Mr. William Woodroffe, of ye Parish of Chippenham, yeoman, gave, by Will, to the Bailiff of ye Borough of Chippenham, and to the Minister of the said Parish for the time being, an Annuity of Five Pounds, to be received by the said Bailiff and Minister on the Feast of All Saints, to be by them paid to a Schoolmaster, for keeping a School, and teaching of Ten poor Boys within the said Borough, such as the said Bailiff and Minister for the time being should think fit.

This Annuity is payable out of the field called the Breach, situate in ye Ivy, in ye Parish of Chippenham. In consequence of Mr. Wm. Woodroffe's Donation, the House given by Mr. Richard Scott, was erected into a Free School, and a Master appointed to the same by the Bailiff of the said Borough, and the Master of the School is appointed by the Bailiff and Burgesses of Chippenham, and ye Boys are nominated alternately by the Bailiff and Minister of the said Parish for the time being.

In the year 1680,

John Wicks, Gentleman, by Will, bearing date the thirteenth day of March, One Thousand Six Hundred and Eighty-seven, devised to the Minister and Churchwardens of the Parish of Chippenham, in the County of Wilts, certain lands, called Pipesmore, containing 6A. 2R. 0r. in Trust, to divide the Rent of the said Lands yearly, on the twenty-ninth Day of March, unless it fell on a Sunday, then the Monday following, amongst the Puor of Chippenham where most needful.

The land is now Lett at £.23 per annum, and the Rent is laid out in the Purchase of Linen Garments, and given to both poor men and women in the said Parish.

In the Year 1719,

The Rev. Robert Cock, Vicar of this Parish, gave by Will to the Ministers of the several Parishes of Chippenham, Melksham, and Box, in the County of Wilts, in Trust, after defraying all his Debts and Funeral Expences, the Residue of his Goods and Chattels, Rights and Credits, to apply the same towards it, and supporting a Charity School for Girls within the said Parish of Chippenham. A Close of Meadow Land was purchased by his Trustees out of the Residium of his Estate near a House called by the name of the November the 1. 1601,

Gabriel Goldney, late of Chippenham, in the County of Wilts. Clothier, by his Will of this Date (amongst other things), gave and bequeathed Six Pounds per annum, chargeable on his lands at Tytherton, to purchase six Coats to be given to honest poor labouring men of the Parish of Chippenham, no one Person to receive one of these Coats two successive years following, the disposal of the Coats to be in the Heirs of the said Testator for ever.

These lands are described in the Will by the names of Mill Field, and two other Grounds adjoining to it called Cogswell, and one other Ground, called Hatts, and are now in the occupation of Mr. William Crook, as Tenant to Mrs. Sarah Goldney. June 1, 1813.

In the year 1728.

Mr. Robert Gale, Citizen and Victuall of London, left by Will, Twenty Pounds a year to the Poor of the Parish of Chippenham, in the County of Wilts, payable out of certain Estates called Claypool and Brassington, in the Counties of Lincoln and Derby, in these Words following: Twenty Pounds a-year, Part thereof to be distributed yearly on the Feast of St. Thomas the Apostle, at the discretion of the Bailiff and six of the ancientest Burgesses of the said Borough, at the Parish Church of Chippenham, and Twenty Shillings a year yearly for ever for a Preacher to Preach at the Parish Church of Chippenham at the distributing of the said Twenty Pounds a year, and Twenty Shillings a year yearly for ever to the said Bailiff and six of the ancientest Burgesses of the said Borough to drink withal for their pains in distributing of the said Twenty Pounds, as aforesaid.

This Money is received annually of Mr. Willy, Receiver, Christ's Hospital, London, and distributed to the poor at the Vestry on St. Thomas' Day.

March 31 and April 1, 1602.

By Deed of this Date, made between Sir Andrew Bayntun, Bart., Paul Cobb Methuen, and Richard Long, of the first part, Harry Goldney and Henry Burnett, of the second part, and Paul Methuen, the Rev. John Starkey, Mathew Humphrys, and Gabriel Goldney, of the third part, several Messuages and Lands situate in the Parishes of Chippenham and Laycock, in the several occupation of Mary Tayler, Robert Sadler, Alfred King, Wm. Williams, and John Boumes, and were conveyed to the use and behoof of the said Sir Andrew Bayntun, Paul Cobb Methuen, Richard Long, Paul Methuen, John Starkey, Mathew Humphrys, George Norris, and Gabriel Goldney, their Heirs and Assigns for ever, upon Trust to Let and dispose of the Premises to the best advantage, and to employ, or cause to be employed, the Rents, Issues, and Profits thereof for the Maintenance, Upholding, and Reparation of the Parish Church of Chippenham, and for the provision of things necessary for the said Church.

In the year 1601,

Mr. Richard Scott, of Chippenham, gave by Will the present Free School House (whenever a School should be created, and Maintenance given unto it for the encouragement of the Schoolmaster) for a little more encouragement, and to be disposed of by the Bailiff and Burgesses for ever.

In the year 1764,

Mrs. Mary Bridges, of the Parish of Chippenham, by her Will, left Ten Pounds for the use of the Free School in the Parish of Chippenham, which with interest, amounting to five pounds, was paid in December One Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventy-Four, by the late Mr. Wm. Lovegrove, surviving Executor, into the hands of the then Bailiff of the Borough of Chippenham, in consideration of the Bailiff's engaging for himself and his successors to pay to the master of the said Free School the sum of fifteen shillings yearly for the teaching and instructing two poor Boys, born within the Borough, in Reading, Writing, and Arithmetic. The nomination of these two Boys is with the Bailiff solely.

Nov. the 17, 1769,

Wm. Colborne, late of the City of Bath, Esq. on this day had paid into his hands the sum of One Hundred Pounds, three per cent. consols. in the names of Sir James Tylucy Long, and others. And by deed of this date it was declared, That the Dividends thereof should be paid towards the Support and Maintenance of such Freemen of the Borough of Chippenham, and the Widows of Freemen living in Free Houses, and being in the possession of the Freedom of such Houses at such time, in such Parts, Shares, and Proportions, Manner, and Form, either in Money, Clothes, or Provisions, or otherwise, as the said Trustees, and their Successors, or the major part of them, should think proper.

The surviving Trustees are Paul Cobb Methuen, and Gabriel Goldney, Esquires.

Dial and Cross.

There rest the Village Dead, and there too I,
When yonder Dial points the hour, must lie.
Look round, the distant prospect is display'd,
Like life's fair landscapes, marked with light and shade.
Stranger, in peace pursue thy onward road,
But ne'er forget thy long and last abode.

As you face this inscription, the dial is on the left,
and the landscape on the right.

Hermitage.

From this to the right is a View of the Dial and Cross.

To mark the few and fleeting hours,
I plac'd the Dial midst the flowers;
Which, one by one, came forth and died,
Still with'ring round its ancient side:
Mortal, let the sight impart
Its pensive moral to thy heart.

But fix thy better hopes on scenes above.

Eidem fuit ornamenta; temperantiâ enim fuæ,
Omninodâ virtute publicæ,

Consuluit salutem, quam singulari,
Fortitudine ac sumptu, Concilio, ac prudentiâ,
In armis, in comitiis, in senatu, in aula,
Plurimum promovit scilicet in omnibus
Tam Monarchiæ, quam ecclesiæ Anglicanæ,
Propugnator fidissimus, non solum insignem,

Et animi constantiam,
Et legitimæ autoritatis reverentiam,
Sed et egrègiam, cum in Deum,

Tum in vicem ejus gerentes,
Tres scilicet principes, periculis undique cinctos
Pietatem retinuit, cum gloriæ suæ incremento
Cum capitis Maximo discrimine, nempe inter hostes,
Plus quam Sicarios, plus quam homicidas,
Plus etiam quam parricidas, Quorum unus quisq.

Sibi fac esse ducebat,
Non solum suum, sed et Patriæ parentem,
Occidere quibus tamen opposuit,
Alacris seissum Animosus unicum,
Quem habuit filium, Paternis hostibus
Formidabilem Quippe in Rebellores
Armatum,

Cum nefarii gladio, ex improviso conficeretur
Hoc Patriæ vulnus, multo, magis suum
Usque ad senectutem omni laude cumulatam
Pater

This Tablet is dedicated to the Memory of Mary Spencer Grossett, the beloved wife of J. R. Grossett, Esq. M. P. She died at Lacock Abbey, on the 31st

October, 1820, a few weeks after the birth of a still-born child. Her mortal remains are deposited in a vault in the Cathedral of Bristol. Endowed with meekness of temper, and the genuine feelings of Christian charity, she was a kind friend, an affectionate sister, the best of wives, and the tender mother of seven young children. Conscious of a well-spent life, she saw her end approach with the utmost tranquillity and resignation. After receiving the sacrament, she breathed her last, and her pure spirit returned to its Almighty Creator.

Jesus said, I am the living bread which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this bread he shall live for ever. St John, c. vi.

To Frederick Augustus Courtenay Montague, Capt. of the 23d Regiment, or Royal Welch Fusiliers, and Major in the Portuguese service. Adorned with the choicest gifts of heaven, Nature had wreathed the olive Branch, that so conspicuously flourished on his brow, as emblematic of his amiable and affectionate mind. Patriotism and Loyalty, that roused him to seek mortal glory, led him to volunteer his service in his Country's cause at the early age of 16. And, after displaying undaunted courage in Holland, in Martinique, in the expulsion of the French from Portugal, and lastly, at the age of 20, at the memorable battle of Albuera, in Spain, fought on the 16th of May, in the year 1811, he finished his mortal career, pierced through the heart by a musket-ball, whilst gallantly leading his men to a charge. He nobly fell, leaving the laurels so gloriously acquired to be entwined round the hearts of his afflicted parents, who in commemoration of their departed Son, erected this Monument.

Near this place are deposited the Remains of James Montagu, Esq. of Lackham, who died July 12, Anno Domini 1798, Aetatis 47.

As a small token of gratitude and respect, this is humbly erected and dedicated to him by his nephew, George Montagu, to commemorate the many virtues of his best friend and patron.

This modest stone, what few vain marbles can,
Plainly denotes, here lies an honest man,
Whom Heaven kept sacred from the proud and great:

Calmly he looked on either life, and here
Saw nothing to regret, or there to fear.
The friend, the comfort of the sick and poor,
Want never knock'd unheeded at his door:
All mourn his death, his virtues long they tried,
Nor knew how much they lov'd him till he died.

Though no proud monument, or breathing bust,
With awful grandeur, guards her slumbering dust,
This simple Tablet shews, and shews with truth,
When Anna perished—in the bloom of youth!
How memory of her worth could love to tell,
And on her charms with grateful pleasure dwell;
How each perfection shone in her combin'd,
A feeling bosom, with a spotless mind.
But Virtue needs no record on her tomb,
And comment vain on Providence's doom:
Enough, that Heaven received her parting breath,
And mild Religion calm'd the frowns of Death.

In the north-west corner of the north aisle are two stone figures lying, perhaps a Knight Templar and his Lady: they are much defaced. At the South Porch is a Saxon Arch.

A BENEFACTION.

William Harris, D. D. gave to the Poor of the Parish of Cullern in manner and form following :
Item, I will and require my executors to lay out Three Hundred Pounds in one parcel of Land, which I desire may be conveyed to such Persons as they shall think fit, in trust, that the Rents, Issues, and Profits thereof, be disposed yearly, and every year, amongst such poor persons of Cullern, where I was born, which are house-keepers, and take no alms of the Parish, to be distributed at the Feast of Easter and Christmas,
 by the discretion of my Executors, the Vicar, Churchwardens, and Overseers of the Poor there : But if it should happen that my Executors die without issue, then be that is the Owner, or Right Proprietor of the Farm in Cullern, shall be a Trustee, with the Vicar there, to see this charitable use honestly disposed of to such poor people as really want the same. Dated Nov. 6, 1700.

Memorandum, That Charles Savage, of Westwood,
 in this County, Esq. being one of Dr. Harris's Executors, has, in lieu of the said £300, settled a Rent-Charge of Twelve Pounds per annum,
 free from all Taxes and Payments whatsoever.
 For the payment of which the said Charles Savage has charged an Estate of his at Keevillwick, in the Parish of Keevill, in the County of Wilts.

Near this Place, and in the same Grave with her dear late Husband, Thos. Blow, Esq. lyeth the Body of Mary Blow, widow, one of the daughters of Robert Butler, late of Great Chelsea, in the county of Middlesex, Esq. and Martha his Wife, sister of Edward Butler, Dr. of Laws, late President of Saint Mary Magdalen, in the University of Oxford, and sister to Ann Eyre, Wife of Sergeant Eyre, late of this Parish. She was a most amiable and affectionate Wife, a most tender Relation in every capacity, a warm and zealous Friend, and, above all, an exemplary Christian, adorning the Doctrine of God our Saviour in all things. She bore a long, a tedious illness, contracted probably by an over-sedulous attendance on an infirm but valuable Husband, with an evenness of temper peculiar to her, and is now gone (alas for those many whom her engaging behaviour had endeared her to, but who must for a time be separated from her) to that happy Place where there shall be no more death, neither any more pain. She died the eleventh of November, in the sixty-second year of her age, and in the year of our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty-five, having finished the Work which was given her to do: For in the great variety of life which fell to her share, she preserved a surprising propriety of Behaviour, and always became the Post which was assigned her, ever mindful of the one thing needful, and of so unblemished a Reputation in every station as might have done honour to better times than those she lived in. This Monument is erected to her dear Memory by her till now inseparable Niece, the most sorrowful Executrix of her last Will and Testament, Mary Herbert of Chelsea, widow.

In Memory of Charlotte Northey, daughter of the late William Northey, Esq. of Ivy-House, who, after a painful and lingering illness, which she bore with the greatest patience and resignation, died Feb. 18, 1789, Aged 28.

Here lie the Remains of William Northey, Esq. son of William Northey, Esq. of Compton Bassett, Wilts. by Abigail, daughter to Sir Thomas Webster, Bart. of Battle Abbey, Sussex, who departed this life Dec. 21, 1770, in the 49th year of his Age. He was a kind Relation, a true Friend, a warm Patriot, and a most worthy Man. He gained a complete knowledge of the Interests of Britain: at Court independent, in the Senate unbiassed. This was his true character: to add more appear ostentatious, to say less not doing justice to his Memory.

Also the Remains of Lucy Northey, his youngest Daughter, who died June 11, 1785, in the 15th year of her age.

Reader!

In pity drop one kind, one tender tear,
For every virtue lies collected here;
Snatched off in all the bloom of pleasing youth,
A mind adorn'd with honour, goodness, truth.
To prove that souls angelic spurn this earth,
She raised our wonder, then resign'd her breath.

To these so mourn'd in death, so lov'd in life,
The afflicted parent, and the widowed wife,
With tears inscribes this monumental stone
That holds their ashes, and expects her own.

Daughter of Robert Vynor, of Gauthby, in the County of Lincoln, Esq. who departed this life the 28th day of October, 1750, Aged 27. Also the Remains of Ann Northey, eldest Daughter of the said William Northey, Esq. by Ann, daughter of Edward Hopkins, Esq. of Coventry, who died in August, 1765, Aged 12 years.

If manners gentle, void of guile and strife,
Could health prolong, and add to human life;
If manly sense, and innocence of heart
Could shield the stroke of Death's unerring dart;
Her friends would not regret Life's narrow span,
And she'd have liv'd beyond the age of man;
But gracious Heaven, who knew her virtues best,
Recall'd her placid soul to blissful Rest.

Near this Place lyeth the Body of Thomas Goddard, gent. 4th son of Edward Goddard, late of Upham, Esq. deceased February the 7th, An^o Domⁱ 1691, in the 71 year of his Age. [BY WALLER, THE POET.]

Under this stone lyes Virtue, Youth,
Unblemisht Probity, and Truth,
Just unto all Relations known,
A worthy Patriot, Pious son,
Whom Neighbouring Towns so often sent
To give their sence in Parliament;
With lives and fortunes trusting one
Who so discreetly us'd his own.
Sober he was, wise, Temperate,
Contented with an old Estate,
Which no foul avarice did encrease,
Nor wanton luxury make lesse.
While yet but young his Father dy'd
And left him to a happy Guide:
Not Lammel's Mother with more care
Did counsell and instruct her Heir,
Or teach with more success her Son
The vices of the time to Shunn.
An Heiress she, while yett alive,
All that was her's to him did give:
And he just gratitude did show
To one that had oblig'd him soe;
Nothing too much for her he thought,
By whom he was so bred and taught,
So early made that path to tread,
Which did his youth to Honour lead.
His short life did a Pattern give
How neighbours, husbands, friends should live
The virtues of a Private life
Exceed the glorious noise and strife
Of Battels wonn, in those we finde
The solid interest of Mankind.
Approv'd by all, and lov'd so well,
The young, like fruit that's ripe, he fell.

Elizabeth died in March 1731, aged 2 months. Another Son died in November, 1735, soon after his birth.

Arms—A fess between 6 fleur-de-lis addition to talbots.

Underneath lie the Remains of Joseph Houlton, of Farleigh Castle, in the County of Somerset, Esq. Lord of this Manor, who died July 6, 1750, Aged 62 years. And of Anna his Wife, sole Daughter and Heir of Abraham Hook, of Bristol, Esq. descended from an ancient family of that name in the County of Glou. who died October 24, 1754, Aged 59.

His happy temper, and amiable disposition in domestic and private life, his lenity, with the strictest uprightness, in the public administration of Justice, made his death very generally and deservedly lamented. In her a real principle of religion, with a true sense of the conjugal and parental duties, perfected the character of an affectionate Wife and tender Mother. Happy in each other, they were enabled to bear the loss of four children, Anna, interred under this Stone, who died unmarried, Nov. 16, 1735, in the 20th year of her age, the other Three, under that on the left hand. Mary, the only child who survived them, died without issue, Sept. 14, 1762, the much-loved Wife of James Frampton, of Moriton, in the County of Dorset, Esq. who laid and inscribed this Stone to their Memory, in testimony of his affectionate esteem and gratitude.

Expectans Expectavi. Psal. xl.

With Jacob's Rachel, I (am James his wife)
Waited full long before our married life;
In mee it was a matchless expectation,
More tedious farre till matches consummation,
Which once enjoyed, and scarce three years in all,
A lingering sicknes ridd me out of thrall.
For this my change all myne appointed daies,
I waited still, and waiting gave God praise,
That had so fitted me for heaven, where
My soul now rests, as doth my body here.

Do not scruple to drop it here,
Thinke not it can fall alone,
Flouds are due unto this stone.
Here lyes (ah! how that word does pierce,
And double blacks the mournful herse!)
Vertue's faire copy, Heaven's delight,
Not fit for mees, but angels seg'd,
In whose pure brest, sweet innocence
Kil'd by most found such defence,
Where no black thoughts, the sire of shame,
Charm'd by her vertue, magicke game,
Lov'd by the Rich, the poor did blesse
Her as their souveraigne almonesse;
Wife, Mother, Friend, better no age
Ere should be upon the world's stage,
Then reader if thou hath a teare,
Canst thou grudge but drop it here?

Dear Saint of God, to whom in life most dear,
God's house, and messengers, and servants were,
The holy things of God, most precious all,
Precious with God her death and buriall.
Her soul enlarged and set at liberty
The 70th year of its captivity.
If evidence for Heaven be truth of grace,
Then sure in Heaven this Matron hath a place.
Let after ages say, when this is gone,
Blest be the Memory of such a one.

So as to meet againe in better life
On better termes, meane while our bodies must
To their first nothing turne, at best but dust,
Till glorified, our soules doe alwaies sing
All glory to the Everlasting King.

Surviving friends in life, see you prepare
For life in heaven where no survivors are,
That when of this short life death ends ye story,
You sharers be with us of endless glory.

Having borne a severe and lingering illness with great firmness and Christian resignation, her mild and amiable temper, and her affectionate attachment to her Husband and Relations, have rendered her loss to them peculiarly afflictive.

Near this marble rest the Remains of Harriet Hardwick, daughter of the Rev. James Hardwick, LL.D. Rector of this Parish, and of Betty his Wife, who departed this life the 6th day of January, 1798, in the Twelfth year of her age.

See from the earth the fragrant lily rise,
It springs, it flourishes, it fades, it dies;
So this fair flower scarce blossom'd for a day,
Sweet was the bloom, and speedy the decay.

James Hardwick, Brother to the above-named Harriet, died December 31, 1790, Aged 6 years and 7 months, and is interred in the Chancel of Chipping Sodbury Church.

There rest, sweet child, and wait the Almighty's will,
Then rise unchanged, and be an angel still.

To the Memory of Joyce Hitchens, the Wife of Giles Hitchens, who died in London September 20, 1715, Aged 60.

When fate cut off her slender thread of life,
A mourning husband lost a loving wife;
Children, by duty and affection led,
Deplor'd their kind and tender mother dead,
To path of virtue them she gently drew
By awful precepts, and example too.
As time came on for silent night repose,
With fervent prayer the evening she would close;
And when soft sleep flew from refreshing eyes,
Devotion was her morning sacrifice:

She piously the sacred Sabbath spent,
Our publick worship did with zeal frequent;
And at the solemn sacramental feast,
Was constantly a reverent guest.
Why may not the glorious choir above now sing,
Their grateful anthems to the Eternal King.
And welcome one more soul to joyful rest,
In lofty regions of the ever blest?

[Over the above is a figure kneeling.]

Fall of all loves, and free from discords here,
Lived and dyed this ever happy pair;
Though Death in her first fixed his cruel dart,
That but their Bodies, not their Souls could part;
For, like a turtle, being left alone,
He never ceas'd to sigh, or ever ceas'd to moan,
The loss of his dear consort dead and gone,
Till death at last led him the fatal way
From mortall shades to everlasting day,
Where, mixinge souls, they now in peace remain,
Fraught full of joys without alays of pain.

Noe more, poor wretched man, repue to dye,
Since cold and breathless underneath do's lye
A creature more refined and purer far,
Than thou and I, or common mortals are;
Fain, wise, and virtuous, of an upright life,
A spotless virgin, and a faithful wife,
What pity 'twas that thou thus regardless fate,
To so much worth should give so short a date.

An uniform probity and an affectionate candour distinguished the Man, a truly conjugal and paternal tenderness the Husband and Father, an unwearied diligence in this laborious Cure, joined to a primitive simplicity of manners, the Clergyman. He was thankful and humble under the blessings of life, patient and resigned under his own affliction, compassionate and kind towards those of others. Thus, Reader, thou seest the most useful human virtue described in the same plain dress in which they lived in this worthy person: in others, perhaps, thou mayest find them more shining, but in few more solid, or better fitted to make men serviceable to each other, and happy in themselves.

Read and imitate.

In trouble, pain, and care, we run our race,
Through all our Saviour brought us by his grace,
From Sins reigning power Jesus set us free,
Yet infirmity still attending we;
By faith we hoped a pardon to obtain,
And with our Christ in endless bliss to reign.
Farewell, vain world, pain, sin, and sorrow too,
We are now at rest, and are rid of you.
Our race is run, our warfare at an end,
And now our joys all human thoughts transcend;
The praises of our God we sing on high,
His blessed face we see eternally.

Under lie the Remains of the Rev. John Jordan, A. M. heretofore Fellow of Catharine Hall, in Cambridge, who having cultivated a friendship with the excellent Dr. Sherlock, when Master of that Society, was called forth by him from his retirement, at Aldridge in Staffordshire, where he lived contentedly upon his patrimony, for the Cure of this Parish, refusing from the same hands a more distant benefice of much greater value. Having rebuilt the Vicarage House, he resided constantly in it twenty-eight years, conscientiously performing the duties of his calling, a faithful Minister of Christ. By his abilities as a Divine and a Preacher, he was well qualified for higher stations in the Church, but being moderate in his desires, and happy in his situation, he solicited no favours from the Great, nor envied those who claimed them. He died August 28, 1763, Aged 76.

Death, like a stranger, at a distance stays,
Nor, till the message sent, his visit pays;
Yet there are some, more favoured than the rest,
On whom he calls, a free and friendly guest:
Such was my happy lot, so blest my doom,
And such the useful lesson of this tomb:
Live well, and Death, though sudden, will but prove
The shorter passage to the realms above.

To the Memory of William Litten, who departed this life July the 16th, 1811, Aged 79 years.

O what frail man observes how oft
He does from virtue fall?
O cleanse from me from my secret faults,
Thou God, that knowest them all.
The old and young must all submit,
To fatal death, when God thinks fit.

Here lyeth the Body of Robert Litten. He died Dec. 10, 1737, Aged 64 years.

In Memory of John, Son of Thomas and Susanna Potts, who died young. Also John, their second Son, who died Oct. 8, 1788, Aged 21 years.

Here lies a youth, whose cheerful bloom,
Promis'd a train of years to come;
But set for e'er his morning sun,
And life exspir'd e'er scarce begun.
He was of temper sweet, of mind serene,
No vice in his conduct e'er were seen.
Take warning hence, ye thoughtless, young, and gay,
Who from the paths of virtue often stray;
You cannot tell how soon your time may come,
And unprepar'd be summon'd to the tomb.

In Memory of Thomas, the son of Robert and Mary Litten, who died April 5, 1765, Aged 7 years and 7 months.

A tender branch lies buried here,
That was belov'd by parents here;
Few was his days, short was his race
From womb to grave, short was the space.
Learn parents, then, to be content,
When God requires what is but lent;
In youth and children put no trust,
For all must die, and turn to dust.

In Memory of John, the Son of Robert and Mary Litten, who died Dec. 8, 1773, Aged 29 years.

On Flat Tombs.

To the Memory of Robert Litten, who died the 2d of April, 1704, Aged 68 years.

Certain and uncertain is the state of man,
Certain of death, but yet uncertain when;
For instance, here you have before your eyes,
How soon the strongest man grows sick and dies,
Sudden from off this tiresome stage he fled,
One day in health, the next amongst the dead;
The stroke surprising to a carnal eye,
But not to one prepar'd to die.

In Memory of Thomas Puzey, Schoolmaster, who departed this life April 30th, 1700, Aged 35 years and 9 months.

To the Memory of Harriot, daughter of Joseph and Mary Jarvis, who died April 30, 1813, Aged 22 years.

Though few my days were here below,
The longer is my rest;
God call'd me hence in early life,
Because he thought it best.

When sickness comes,
Night you think long,
From watch to watch
The morning cometh on.
Before night comes,
Make use of precious light,
Before death enters
With ghastly sight.

In Memory of William, Son of Samuel and Sarah Hornblow, who died Nov. 7th, 1773, Aged 21 years.

Though painful sickness hath my flesh consum'd,
And here my wasted body lies intomb'd;
Easy and open hath my passage been,
From earth to heaven, from grief to joy unseen.

In Memory of James Litten, who died May 10, 1815,
Aged 00 years.

To the Memory of Mary, the Wife of James Litten, who died June 10, 1800, Aged 45 years.

Reader, be sure make Christ thy friend,
Be always ready for thy end,
I in my prime was catch'd away
Therefore repent, make no delay;
Youth, health, nor strength, could not me save,
From God's decree, bar from my grave.

Also James their Son, who died young.

On Flat Tomb against S. side of the Church.

In Memory of Mary, Wife of John Stone, who died
March 14, 1805, Aged 61 years.

O God to me take heed,
I help of thee require;
O Lord of Hosts, with haste and speed,
Help me I thee desire.

In Memory of Francis, Son of John and Mary Stone, who died March 28, 1802, Aged 27.

With pain I've been long oppress'd,
That wore my strength away,
It made me long for lasting rest,
That never shall decay.

Although Death's dart did pierce my heart
When I was in my prime,
My friends most dear to weep forbear,
'Twas God's appointed time.
For sudden death, you plainly see,
Has eas'd me of my misery.

To the Memory of Martha, daughter of James and Lizzy Deacon, who died July 29, 1808, Aged 3 years.

Parent, lament not o'er thy child,
To God's decree be reconcil'd,
The Spirit from the body fled,
Will gain a better in its stead.

Reader, prepare to follow me,
For as I am, so shalt thou be,
Rolling in dark and silent dust,
Prepare for death, for die thou must:
Life is uncertain, death is sure,
Sin is the wound, Christ is the cure;
Praises on tombs are vainly spent,
A good name is a monument.

To the Memory of Thomas Drew, who departed this life July the 16th, 1818, Aged 35 years.

Confide not, Reader, in thy youth or strength,
But more than both, the present moment prize,

Honoris et pietatis ergo,

V. M. P.

This is inscribed to the Memory of John Nott, eldest Son of the late Captain J. V. P. Nott, First Lieut. of His Majesty's Ship Success. He was carried off by the Yellow Fever, at Port-Royal, Jamaica, on the 18th of August, 1794, in the 24th year of his age.

Also to the Memory of his youngest Brother, George Nott, who fell a sacrifice to the same dreadful disorder, in November, 1795, in the West Indies, on Board His Majesty's Ship Baulieu, in the 17th year of his age. Though cut off at so early a period, they promised not only to be an ornament to their profession, but to their Country. In private life, their Virtues were such as to make their loss ever to be lamented by all who knew them. The affliction of their surviving Parent, (by whom this Monument is erected) is too poignant for description.

E. Wall of Chancel.

How happy blest in Christ was I
That in this World no longer for to stay
For Death's a debt all must pay
He'll give no time no not one day
Experience to me the truth
For I did pay it in my youth
So yearnest was he in his rage
Took me away from off ye stage
Before I was 8 years of age
You yt are young prepare to dye
I was young & near this place to lye.

In 1700, the Manor belonged to Thomas Lord
Wharton, afterwards Marquis of Wharton and Malmesbury. He died in 1715, and Philip, who, in 1710, was created Duke of Wharton, succeeded to it. The next proprietors appear to have been Maria Theresa, Dutchess Dowager of Wharton, Sir Charles Keynes, and Sir Christopher Musgrave, Barons; who about the year 1730, sold it to Sir John Rushout, Baronet, one of his Majesty's most honorable Privy Council.
In 1760, Sir John gave it to his son, the late Lord
Northwick, on his coming of age, a gift which he afterwards confirmed by his Will. He died in 1775.
The late Lord enjoyed the Manor till the time of his Death, which happened in 1800, and by his Will devised the same to his widow, the Right Hon. Lady Northwick. Sir George Rushout is the present Lord.

In King Athelstan's Chapel is the following Epitaph
on LADY MARSHALL:

Stay, gentle passenger, and read thy dunc—
I am, thou must be, dead.

In assured hope of a joyfull resurrecon, here rests deposited all that was mortall of the religious and virtuous Lady Dame Cyscely Marshall, daughter of the Honourable Sir Owen Hopton, Kt. late Lieutenant of the Towre Royal, the faythful, modest, and loyall wife of Sir George Marshall, Knight. Whether transcended in her more the ornaments that beaified
a wife, a mother, a matrone, is still a question betwixt her all discunsolate husband, daughter, servants:
Onely this is agreed upon all hands, such were her perfections in each state, that in vayne will any epitaph endcavour to delineate them. What her fayth, hope, charity, temperance, piety, patience, may (to better purpose) be expected from the trump of an archangell in the Day of Gud's generull retribucon, than from the faynte and flagging attribucons of any particular penn. To close all, with her close theis two spirituall elaculacions, Miserere mei, Deus; et Domine recipe animam meam, (have mercy upon me, O God, and receive my soul, O Lord,) were the wings wheroun
the last breath of this turtle mounted towards heaven:
To whose sweete memory her sad uate huth devoted this poor Monument, which Oh let no pruphaic hand violate.

Emigravit 23 Apryll, Anno Salvat. 1625.

The Abbey Register contains a curious memorandum relating to one whose Remains were also deposited in this Chapel.

"John Buclle, reputed to be a gypsic, deceased
September 21st, 1757, at John Peryu's house, upon the Fflosse, in Shipton Parish, in Gloucestershire, and was buried in King Athelstone's Chapell, by King Athelstone and Lady Marshall, within the abhic church, at Malmesbury. This buriall was Sept. 23, 1657. Howbeit, he was taken up again by the meanes of Thomas Iyve, esq. who then lived at the abbie, and by the desires and endeavours of others out of the said chappell, was removed into the church-yarde, and was there re-buried neere the east side of the church porch, October 7, 1657, in the presence of Thomas Iyve, of the abbie, esqr. Pleadwell, of Mudgell, esqr. Richard Whitmore, of Slaughter, in the Countie of Gloucester, and Dr. Qui, of Malmesbury, with very many others."

"Simon Gawen, sometime Vicar of this parish, but put out and expelled because a Nonconformist, was buried 22d Jan. 1671."—Par. Reg. Mr. Gawen was Vicar of Malmesbury in 1629, as appears by the Register.

Arms of the Abbey of Malmesbury :

Upon a chief, argent, a mitre, or, between two croziers, azure ; on the fesse and bombrit points two lions passant guardant, or : the base gules.

In the parish of Westport is a Presbyterian Chapel : in St. Mary's an Anabaptist : and in that part of the town called Hollway a Moravian.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE REMAINS OF THE ABBEY CHURCH.

"What exists of the Abbey Church may be considered as about one-fourth of the building in its perfect state. On approaching the eastern side of the ruin, the first part we come to is the centre of the transept, where formerly stood the lofty spire. It was supported by four circular arches, two of them are yet complete, viz. the arch which leads into the northern side of the transept, and the arch which opened into the nave. These arches are about 60 feet in height, and 21 in width. The Abbey Church, at present, consists only of a part of the nave and side aisles : it is 60 feet in height, 110 in length, and 68 in breadth, or eighty, the thickness of the walls included. The several parts appear to have been constructed ut periods very distant from each other. From the outside of the nave down to the aisle rise ornamented pinnacles, from which spring flying buttresses, as also from the walls. There is a relic of the circular arch of the grand western entrance. The pillars are round and plain, from the base to the capital, on which are specimens of elegant sculpture. There are a few bass-reliefs remaining, in very good preservation. One of the figures, a sagittary, has been particularly admired by the antiquarian. On the southern side of the nave are two porches, the outer is a deep Saxon arch, measuring from the centre of its front to the inner porch eleven feet, its width twenty, and its height about eighteen. This porch is very magnificent, it has eight mouldings, ornamented with a variety of sculpture, which begins at the base, and continues round in a regular sweep to the opposite pedestal, without capital or any interruption. These mouldings vary in breadth ; some are about ten inches, and others a foot and upwards. The first moulding (which is contiguous to the door) has a waving branch, with lateral tendrils ; the second is covered with lozenges : the third exhibits histories from the Old Testament ; on the fourth the branch and tendril are repeated, but of a smaller size ; the fifth is a continuation of histories from the Old Testament ; the sixth have lozenges and tendrils interwoven ; on the seventh are exhibited pieces from the New Testament ;" and the eighth is adorned with tendrils. The celebrated Mr. Addison, who was one of the Members in Parliament for the Borough of Malmesbury, on viewing the Porch, declared, that it was the most complete work of the kind he had ever seen. The inner Porch is also a Saxon arch : it is seventeen feet in length, twelve in width, and sixteen in height : on the sides of this porch are some small Saxon arches : above these are placed stone statues of the twelve apostles, six on each side, having an angel stretched over their heads. There is a room above the porches, said to have been the school-room belonging to the abbey. The immediate entrance into the Church is nine feet in height, and five in width. It has three mouldings, similar to those in the outer porch, and above this portal seems to be a representation of the Deity on a throne, supported by angels. Just within this entrance (fixed in the wall to the left) is a head with a crown on it, supposed to represent our Saviour wearing the crown of thorns. On advancing, we perceive the nave to be separated from the side aisles by massive round columns, with plain capitals, six on each side. These columns support three rows of arches, the lowest and the highest somewhat pointed, and the central proper Saxon. Over one of the rows on the southern side is a small stone structure, projecting from the wall, with a graded opening towards the body of the church. It is supposed by some to have been a kind of prison for the monks, or the place where they performed public penance ; by others it is thought that it was intended

" * Some of the scriptural subjects are—' The creation of Adam and Eve : their trespass and expulsion from Paradise'—' Christ and his disciples eating the Paschal Supper,'—' The Crucifixion of Christ, his burial, resurrection, and ascension ; and the descent of the Holy Spirit on the apostles.' The historical sculpture consists of about eight bass-reliefs, some of them in good condition, others much defaced, especially those towards the base of the arch : it may, therefore, be conjectured that these begin at the left of the spectator."

MONUMENTAL INSCRIPTIONS

for the abbot's household, from whence to view the procession, or perhaps appropriated to the use of the abbot himself. The ribs of the groins in the vaulting of the church are ornamented with foliage and heads, accounted very elegant. The heads are supposed by some to represent the benefactors in this monastery. The lower part of the altar-piece is a solid wall, with a cornice, ornamented with griffins, dragons, and other figures. This wall, probably, was the screen, which formerly separated the nave from the transept; in the centre is a trace of the door-way which led into it. The seats in the chancel, on each side of the communion table, seem to be those once belonging to the choir. In a small inclosure, in the south aisle of the church, is a tomb, with an effigy of a man in royal robes, and a lion at his feet, lying upon it. It is called 'KING ATHELSTAN'S TOMB;' but we must not infer from thence that Athelstan was interred in this part of the church. William of Malmesbury affirms to the contrary; and agreeably to the testimony of this early historian, I am informed by the Rev. Mr. Bisset, the present Vicar of Malmesbury, that some years ago he was present when what is called Athelstan's Tomb was opened, and appearances indicated that it was only a cenotaph. The late Dr. Mapson, of Tetbury, conjectured, that when the place of King Athelstan's interment, under the high altar, became ruinous, his monument might have been removed into that part of the church where it now stands, in order to preserve it from the inclemency of the weather. The doctor's conjecture is rendered the more probable by what Mr. Warner has remarked: 'There is,' says he, 'a considerable resemblance between the sculpture on this tomb, and the figure of that monarch on the reverse of his famous seal, of which I have seen a cast from the original, in the possession of the late Gustavus Branden, esq.' Mr. Evelyn, son to the celebrated Evelyn, made drawings of King Athelstan's tomb, which were some time since shewed by Mr. Bryan to the Society of Antiquaries."

The Manor

Formerly belonged to Earl Ferrers, who was executed in 1700, for the murder of his steward either at the Manor House of Garsden, or at his seat in Hampshire.
Paul Methuen, Esq. succeeded Earl Ferrers, and the present Lord of the Manor is Paul Cubb Methuen, of Corsham, Esq. The Manor House is an ancient stone building, now occupied by a farmer. The extent of the parish is about 1200 acres, chiefly pasture.

The Parsonage House was re-built in 1818. There is a Sunday School, supported by subscription, in which are about 20 children.

NOT . THE . GOSPEL . 1630

The Communion Table is of oak, very handsomely carved. On one end is the date 1630, and on the other the initials A. B.

The Rev. James Sparrow succeeded to the Rectorship of Brinkworth on the death of the Rev. W. Thornton, who lies buried in the Chancel; John Penton was the late Rector, the Rev. Matthew Mnrsh present Rector.

The Manor of Brinkworth belongs to the Earl of Suffolk.

John Weeks gave for ever five Pounds per Annum to the Schoolmaster for the support of a Charity School, which with about £.20 subscribed, nearly 60 children are educated.

The Church consists of Chancel, Nave, North and South Aisles. The Nave is supported by five plain round pillars on each side, and five pointed arches. In the roof of the North and South Aisles is some small ancient carving, in foliage. In the South Aisle is an ancient oak chest, strongly bound with iron. The Tower contains five Bells :—

On the First—

Thomas Lewen, John Oliffe, Church Wardens. 1693.

I am the first, although but small,
My voice is heard above you all.

Second—

Thomas Lewen, John Oliffe, Church Wardens. 1693.

William Perduc, and Richard Perdue. R C * 18

Third—

Thomas Lewin, John Oliffe, Church Wardens. 1693.

Fourth—

Idem.

Fifth—

I sound to make the sick repent,
In hopes of Life when Breath is spent;
Come when I call, to serve God all,
To sing Alleluia unto the King of Saints.

Thomas Lewen, John Ayliffe, Church Wardens.
William Perdue, and Richard Perdue. 1693.

Here Innocence and Beauty lies, whose breath
Was snatch'd by early, not untimely death:
Hence did she go just as she did begin
Sorrow to know before she knew to sin.
Death, that does sin and sorrow thus prevent,
Is the next blessing to a life well spent.

1703. To the Memory of Hannah Twinnoy.

She was a servant at the White Lion Inn, where was an Exhibition of Wild Beasts, and amongst the rest
a very fierce tyger, which she imprudently took a pleasure in teasing, notwithstanding the repeated remonstrance of its keeper. One day, whilst amusing herself with this dangerous diversion, the enraged animal, by an extraordinary effort, drew out the staple, sprang towards the unhappy Girl, caught hold of her gown, and tore her to pieces.

EPITAPH.

In bloom of youth, she is snatch'd from hence,
She had no time to make defence;
For tyger fierce snatch'd Life away,
And now she lies in a bed of clay
Until the Resurrection Day.

Stay, gentle passenger, and cast thine eye,
Upon this spectacle of mortality:
Here doth the Body of a virgine rest,
Whose soul in Heaven is with her Saviour blest.
She blessed was with nature's gifts, but shin'd,
Far more with gifts and graces of the minde;
Meek, Hymble, chaste, religious, and Devout,
She holy was, and happy is, no doubt.
We all must follow her in mortal state,
O that we could her virtues imitate!
Deserved prayes might, perhaps, have mist her,
Had not these lines been fixt here by her Sister.

Against North Wall of Body.

Near this place lieth the Body of John Dixon, late Minister of this Place, who deceased the 20th day of

Of manners gentle, of judgement sound,
This tender plant in early youth was found:
But ah! too ven'trous he, through human art,
Was too soon smitten by Death's fatal dart:
Yet mourn not, friends, o'er his untimely grave,
The Lord who took him was the Lord who gave;
He, high in bliss, is ever freed from pain,
Your transient loss is his eternal gain.

A mournful Mother, and a loving Sister, caused this Monument to be erected to his Memry.

The Wife of William Alexander, and Daughter of Jonas and Mary Lawrence,
all of this Parish,
Who Departed this Life ye third Day of May, 1691.

She left us young, yet her small span of Life,
Shew'd a gnod Daughter, Mother, Friend, and Wife.
Her Parents found her an obedient Child,
Her Children tender, and her Husband mild;
So mild, his Will she never did reprove,
One half Submission, t'other half was Love:
To all obliging, piteous of the poor,
Sparing of Speed, but liberal of her Store.
Thus true Religion her whole life did away,
Ah! why so virtuous, and so short her stay?
Many may run a longer race of days,
But who will leave us such a Theme for praise?

This Church consists of a Chancel, Nave, and North Aisle. The north wall of the Nave is supported by four shafted pillars, and four pointed arches. A great many of the old pews are still left, likewise the ancient pulpit and screen, which separate the Chancel from the Nave. On the outside of the north-east corner of the Nave, is a projection, about 4 ft. by 8 ft. of an octangular form upon a square base. It is about 12 ft. high, and appears to have been a winding passage to a gallery, the steps and the door-way may still be seen. In the east window are some small pieces of painted glass, at the bottom is a human figure, nearly perfect, with the head argent, and body azure. In two of the windows in the south wall are representations of human figures, but nearly erased. There are 4 bells in the Tower: on the First—'1634.' Second—'Peace and Good Neighbourhood. 1731.' Third—'the Odore Chelton, John Brind, Churchwardens. 1663.'

[tear,

If Father, Husband, Friend, or Brother, ever claimed a, Stranger, shed it over the grave of

WILLIAM PEACY,

Late of this Place, Gent.

An active enterprising mind, a resolute perseverance, carried him far beyond his Predecessors
in the science of Agriculture.

The strictest integrity, a noble Liberality, & true Christian Charity,

endeared him to every class of men.

In enriching his Country, he elevated his Family;
In giving happiness to Hundreds, he founded his own.
His science was sought for in the Wilds of America.

His exertions to save an Innocent Condemned were repaid by mercy from the Throne.

After a lingering illness, in pious resignation,
And with confident, though humble hope,
He departed this Life

On the 26 of February, 1815, Aged 66.

Go, and do thou Likewise.

Called them,

Than for their more private and domestic Virtues,
Their Liberal Hospitality,
Their Loyalty to their King,

And
Their Piety towards God.
His Remains are beneath deposited with those of his Ancestors, who

For many Centuries
Resided at their Mansion,
In this Parish.

He died September the 14, 1805,
In the 11 year of his Age.

Sacred to the Memory
Of Sir Robert Long,

Late of this Parish, Bart.

and many years one of the Representatives of this County in Parliament,

Whose inviolable Uprightness as a Senator,
Whose impartial Equity as a Magistrate,
Whose affable condescension as a Neighbour,
& whose exemplary conduct as a Christian,
need not, among those who knew his Virtues,
the Eulogium of this Inscription,

which yet may serve, with due honour, to transmit his Character to Posterity,
as highly worthy of their studious Imitation.

He married the Right Hon^{ble} Emma,
Daughter of Richard Earl Tylney, who departed this Life March 8, A. D. 1760, Leaving Issue two Sons and two Daughters.

He died Feb. 10, A. D. 1767,
Aged 62 years.

Near this Place lie the Remains of the Hon^{ble} Harriot Tylney Long,
Wife of James Tylney Long, Bart.

And youngest Daughter of Jacob Vince, of Folkestone,
Of Longford Castle, in this County.
To whose Memory both truth and Justice
Are engaged to pay
This Comprehensive Tribute of Respect,
That no Language can too highly Extol her Virtues, no Tears can Sufficiently bewail her Loss.
She Died Nov. 13, 1777, Aged 41.

Here also lie the Remains of

Sir James Tynley Long, Bart.
who died Nov. 20, 1794, in the 68th year of his age.

On this Monument,
(erected by his particular desire,)
His afflicted Widow records the Name
Of her affectionate and lamented Husband,
Who, both in public and private Life,
Uniformly practised those Virtues
To which, on the adjoining Tablet,
He so justly bore Testimony.

In his amiable and respected Father.
He married, secondly, the Right Hon^{ble} Catherine,
Eldest Daughter of Other, Fourth Earl of Plymouth,
By whom he had one Son,

James,
And three Daughters,
Catherine, Dorothy, and Emma.

The Church consists of a Chancel, Nave, and South Aisle. The arch which separates the Chancel from the Nave is Saxon, as are also the two that support the south wall of the Nave, and adorned with Saxon mouldings. The porch entrance on the south side is Saxon, with a representation of the Virgin Mary over it.

There are but two bells in the Tower. On the outside, carved in stone, is the representation of St. George and the Dragon. On the west, near the Church, is an ancient farm house, with some Gothic windows, and at the south-east corner are two eminus figures in stone. It has, most probably, been some religious foundation.

The Rev. Samuel Smith Rector.

Earl Radnor Lord of Manor, in whose family it has long been in the possession.

To the Beloved Memory of Mary, Wife of John Winstone, who died Feb. 17, 1011.

She was an affectionate

Wife, and most tender parent.

Religion's narrow path with care she trod,
She serv'd her neighbour, and she serv'd her God:
Full eighty years she sojourn'd here below,
Gained many friends, and died without a foe.

RAMSBURY.

On Monuments against the north wall of Chancel,

Here Lies the Body of Robert Hillman, Gent.
who departed this Life July 8, 1694,
In the Forty-ninth Year of his Age.

Underneath are Interred the Remains of Wm. Jones, Esq. He was the Eldest Son, and the last of the Male Line of the Family of William Jones, Esq. of Ramsbury Manor, by Eleonora, his Wife, youngest Daughter of Edward Baile, Esq. of Brinslade Park, in this County. From his Piety, Modesty, Integrity, and natural sweetness of Disposition, from his Benevolence, Generosity, and strict regard to Truth, from a Quickness of Parts, join'd to a sound Judgement, from the Duty and tender Affection he ever shew'd to those of his nearest Alliance, from his engaging Behaviour to all, as well as his warm, steady Friendship to those of his more intimate Acquaintance, (so fair was his Spring of Life,) what might not have been expected from his nuture age? But in the midst of Affluence, Youth, and Health, of every flattering Prospect this World can afford, after an illness of a few Days, it pleas'd the Almighty to blast the Hopes of his Friends, by cutting him off at the early age of 22, on the 7 of April, 1766, whilst on his Travels at Besangon, in France. In Remembrance of their mutual Affection, and as a small Testimony of her Heart-felt concern for the Loss of one so justly dear to her, His eldest Sister Elizabeth, the Wife of William Langham, Esq. now Sir William Jones, Bart. has caused this Monument to be Erected, June, 1775.

On a Monument by the East Wall of Chancel.

To the beloved Memory
of

Mary Eleonora Burdett, Eldest Daughter of the Late
Francis Burdett, Esq.

By Mary Eleonora,
Youngest Sister and Colicress
of William Jones, Esq. of Ramsbury Manor.
This Tablet is inscribed by her Brother,
Sir Francis Burdett, Bart.
She died November 27,
1797, Aged 26.

Not formal duty prompts these mournful Lays,
No painted shew of Grief these Lines impart;
No cold, unfeeling, stale, insipid Praise,
But sorrow flowing from the o'er-fraught heart.
No need hast thou of Monumental Verse,
Lamented Maid, to prove thy worth was high;
The Widow's tear adorns thy modest hearse,
Thy name is honour'd with the poor Man's sigh.
Alas! they cry, that feeling heart is cold,
That liberal hand, which gave to all relief,
That tongue, whose sweetness never can be told,
Which charm'd our ears, and sooth'd our sharpest grief.
If thou canst look, bright Angel, from above,
As to thy God thou bend'st th' adoring knee,
Accept this tribute of a Brother's Love,
And in thy Orisons remember me.

In Memory of Jonathan Knackstone, Gent. whose eminent virtues endeared him to all good men while living, and whose death cannot be sufficiently lamented in his degenerate Age. He was never known to murmur, though deprived by nature of the Organs of Hearing and Speaking. Piety, Justice, Paternal Affection, Illumoity, Benevolence, (which are singly admired in other men) were practised by him with an undeviating constancy. He died March 18, 1745, who died at Toulouse, in France, on the first Day of May, 1786, in the Sixty-Fourth year of his Age.

Vain are the Duties Partial Fondness Pays,
If Virtue's Plaudits Sanction not the Lays;
O'er thee, O Read! no Fading Wreaths are Hung,
No Requiems breath'd by Flattery's soothing Tongue:
Thy worth and truth, in ev'ry Act display'd,
Disdain to Borrow Adulation's Aid;
Nuptial and Filial Love, with grief sincere,
Pour o'er thy Tomb the onavailing Tear.

In a Vault near this place Lieth Mary, the Wife of Major Henry Read, of Crowood, and Daughter of John Jacob, of Salisbury, M. D. She died Mny, to her Husband; a Sincerity of Attachment, to her Friends; and the Gentleness of her Manners, to all who knew her.

Near this Place are Deposited, in the family Vault,
the Remains of Frances Read, Relick of Henry
Read of Crowood, Esq.

To enumerate her various good Actions would be as unnecessary to those who knew her, as it would be unjust to her Character not to notice, how uniformly she exemplified, through a length of years, all those Virtues which distinguish and adorn the different Periods of female Life, while the Greatness of her Mind, during the last Struggles of Nature, added
Dignity to her unsullied Virtues.

Her much Loved Children, in Testimony of their Affection and Respect, dedicate this Monument to her Memory. Ob. May, 1801, Aged 73.

Come, Resignation I wipe the human tear;
Dumstick, anguish droops o'er virtue's bier:
Bid selfish sorrow hush the fond complaint,
Nor from the God she lov'd detain the saint.
Truth, Meekness, Patience, honor'd Shade! were thine,
And huly Hupe, and Charity divine;
Tho' these thy forfeit being could not save,
Thy Faith suhdu'd the terrors of the grave.
Oh! if thy living Excellence could teach,
Death has a loftier Emphasis of Speech;
In Death thy last best lesson still impart,
And write, Prepare to die, on every Heart.

The Lord did prosper me and mine,
Whilst in my Sunshine of Success,
No low'ring Clouds did me distress:

My latter End was Grief and Pain,
Physician's Skill was but in Vain,
The Lord was pleas'd me to release,
And take me to a better Place.
This World and wife I leave behind,
In hopes with her a better for to find,
Thro' Christ, who died for me and all mankind. }

To the Memory of Elizabeth, Wife of Thos. Hilliar, who Departed this life the 31 of Dec. 1811,
Aged 69 years.

You that pass by, and say of me,
Alas! her life is done,
Be it well known unto you all,
My life is now begun.
The life I liv'd, while on the Earth,
Was Sorrow, Grief, and Pain,
But now I have a life indeed,
Of pleasure, joy, and Gain.

Flat Stone.

To the Memory of Elizabeth, Wife of Benjamin
Kent, who departed this life June 2, 1815,
Aged 75 years.

Let no Tears of Sorrow Be,
Dear Relations, shed for me;
Tho' my Earthly life is gone,
I have found a Heavenly one.

Flat Tombs.

To the Memory of Wm. Son of Benjamin and Eliz.
Kent, who departed this life June the 15th, 1810,
Aged 31 years.

While pale disease upon his vitals prey'd,
His frame exhausted, and his Strength decay'd,
With painful steps life lingering to the Grave,
Where human skill had lost the power to save;
Yet still kind Heaven disposed his virtuous mind
To live in patience, and to Die resign'd.

To the Memory of Benjamin Kent, who Departed this life August the 27, 1813, Aged 80 years.

Farewell, my pains, disorders, doubts, and fears,
In Heaven there's neither sickness, grief, nor tears.
Here to the wise and good disjiced by none,
Sleepeth in peace the Father and Son.

In Memory of Wm. Carpenter, who departed this life March 17, 1819, Aged 30 years.

Fair was his form, more fair his Gentle mind,
Where virtue, sense, and piety combined,
To wedded love gave friendship's highest zest,
Endear'd the Husband, and made the Wife blest:
Now widow's grief Erects this sacred Stone
To make his virtues and her sorrows known;
Reader, if thine's the sympathetic tear,
O stop, and drop the tender tribute here.

Flat Tombs.

In Memory of Edward Smith, who died Nov. 12,
1797, Aged 61 years.

Keep death and judgement always in your eye,
None are fit to live, who are not fit to die;
Make use of present time, because you must Take up your Lodging shortly in the Dust,
'Tis dreadful to behold the setting Sun,
And Night approaching, ere your work is done.

Sacred to the Memory of Edward Smith, who departed this life May the 1st, 1803, Aged 40 years.

A sudden Change, in a moment fell,
I had not time to bid my friends farewell;
Think nothing strange that happens unto all,
My Lot's to-day, to-morrow thine might fall.

To the Memory of William Barrett, who Dep'd this life Nov. the 27, 1808, Aged 33 years.

To the Memory of John Lea, who Departed this life
the 11 of October, 1799, Aged 40 years.

Stand, Reader, and Spend a Tear,
And think on me, who now lye here,
And whilst you read the state of me,
Think on the Glass that runs for thee;
Let not this world your thoughts betray,
But think upon your dying day:
In Christ alone I only trust
To rise in number of the just.

In Memory of Wm. Lea, who died July 17th, 1786,
Aged 70 years.

Man, in his best Estate, is but a bubble,
Labours, cares, and never free from Trouhle;
Therefore from this vain world your thoughts employ,
And ever fix them on Eternal joy.

God's love and Favour is not seen always
By worldly Comforts, or by length of Days,
Long life on earth doth but prolong our pain,
A happy Death sure is the greatest gain.

In Memory of Mary, Daughter of Wm. & Hannah
Lea, who died Oct. 8, 1786, Aged 42 years.

My Glass is run, my Days are spent,
My life is gone, it was but lent;
And as I am so must you be,
Therefore prepare to follow me.

The old and young must all submit
To fatal death when God thinks fit:
So, Reader, be sure make Christ thy Friend,
Be always ready for thy End,
I in my bloom was took away,
Therefore prepare, make no delay,
Youth, Health, and Strength, could not me save,
Nor free my Body from the Grave.

To the Memory of Esther, Wife of James Grist, who

Reader, farewell; prepare thyself to die,
Whom death hath conquer'd, here in dust must lie
Until thy Saviour in the Clouds does come,
With Saints and Angels brighter than the Sun,
To judge the world, and give Eternal Rest
To those who feared here on earth the best,
All which believ'd, when living here like thee
Therefore prepare thyself, and follow me,
Where Saints and Angels Hallelujah sing,
Holy Great God, and Praises to the King.

To the Memory of Elizabeth, the Wife of Wm. Smith, who Departed this life the 18 of Jan. 1809, Aged 69 years.

Farewell, my dearest Children, I must away,
Death calls me hence, I could no longer stay;
Farewell, all earthly joys, I go to prove
The endless pleasures of the Saints above;
Farewell, my pains, disorders, doubts, and fears,
In Heaven there's neither sickness, grief, nor tears:
All I possess'd below, I now resign,
Vain world farewell, but welcome joys divine.

The ties of Humanity, the Social efforts of the Mind,
The virtues of the kindred Soul, touched by the cold
hand of Death, may droop like an Evening Flower;
But the gloomy night, and Darkness of the grave,
shall quickly pass, The Morning of the Resurrection shall arrive, then shall they re-expand their Forms
Beneath the Glorious Influence of the Almighty.
Rejoycing in the Possession of an Eternal Day.

A sudden Change on me was wrought,
By God Almighty's holy will,
When to my Grave I soon was brought,
Where I shall slumber until
The Day in which hour will come
To judge the World, and people all,
And raise the Righteous from the Dead
By his Almighty Gracious Call.

My days were short on earth, you see,
Prepare, therefore, to follow me.

In Memory of Richard Deacon, who Departed this life the 18 of Jan. 1795, Aged 52 years.

All you, my friends, who may pass by,
And on this Stone shall cast your eye,
Think on the Grave, and not on Gold ;
As young must die, as well as Old ;
Live like Christians while on Earth,
By doing all things that are just :
Look on my Widow, and the Fatherless,
Assist them when you see them in distress ;
That friendship shewn to me out of the Grave
Continue stedfast to my little Babes,
Then at the final judgement day I trust,
To rise with you, and stand amongst the Just.

To the Memory of Lizzy, Wife of Richard Deacon, who Departed this life Dec. 3, 1815, Aged 73 years.

With Goodness Clouth'd, we may defie,
And fear not what it is to die ;
Fair Virtue's paths are pleasant to be trod,
'Tis Virtue only wafts the Soul to God.
A kind good Wife, true Friend, and tender Mother,
What else, the last Day clearly will discover.

To the Memory of Richard, son of Richard and Lizzy
Deacon, who Departed this life Nov. 19, 1816, der, who died the 19th July, 1797, Aged 44 years.

A virtuous wife, in prime of life,
By Death is snatch'd away;
Her soul through Childbirth's gone to rest,
Tho' flesh is gone to clay.
She's left behind a Husband kind,
Three Daughters, and a Son,
May they prepare to meet her where
True love will ne'er be done.

MONUMENTAL INSCRIPTIONS

Sacred to the Memory of Hannah Lloyd, Daughter of Benjamin and Mary Lloyd, who Departed this life April 22, 1814, Aged 18 years.

Hurried from life, to dwell in Death's domain,
Silent I preach, attend ye young and vain :
Prepare to meet your God this present hour,
No state to-morrow's dawning can secure ;
If youth, or health, could future prospects give,
Those flattering, flow'ry favours bid me live ;
Blasted at once, learn, by this earthly date,
With awe reflect, the same may be your fate.

So blooms, so falls, the Flower of May ;
In her let youth and beauty see
How short their date on earth may be.

From storms of danger, and from seas of grief,
Safe landed, now she finds a blest relief ;
The grave's soft bed her sacred dust contains,
And with its God the soul in bliss remains :
Faith was her Bark, incessant Rays her Oars,
And Hope her Gale, that from these mortal shores,
Thro' Death's rough wave, to Heaven her spirit bore,
To raise redeeming love for evermore.

Against south wall of Chancel.

Sacred to the Memory of Elizabeth Clavering, only Daughter of the Rev. Thomas Burnett, D. D. Rector of West Kingston, in this County, and Prebendary of Sarum, by Elizabeth, his Wife, Daughter of Philip Bathurst, Esq. She was Married to the Rev. Robt. Clavering, Rector of this Parish, Sept. 5, 1720, & Departed this life Jan. 8, 1759, in the 54 year of her age. Not from any Principle of Vanity, but out of a filial regard to the Memory of one of the best and tenderest of Mothers, and as a testimony of Gratitude for the many obligations he received from her worthy Family, Algernon Clavering, Vicar of Broad Hinton, in this County, ordered his Executor to erect this Monument, and to lay his own Body close by the Remains of his Mother. He died of the small-pox, April 7, 1772, Aged 46 years.

In the same Grave lieth the Body of the Rev. Robt. Clavering, A. M. Formerly Student of Christ College, in Oxford, Rector of this Parish, & Vicar of Presbute. His Grandfather was Rector of Piddlo Hinton, in the same County, and his Great Grandfather was the Rev. John Clavering, Fellow of Eaton College, & Rector of Gamlingue, in the County of Cambridge, who is recorded in the Baronetage of England to be the Second Son of Robt. Clavering, Esq. by Anne Daughter of Sir Thos. Grey, from whose third Son James, the present Baronet of this name, is lineally descended. He exchanged this Life for a Better, Nov. 7th, A. D. 1773, in the 80 year of his Age.

Near this Place also lie the Bodies of three of the Children of the said Robt. & Elizabeth Clavering, who Died in their Infancy; Viz. Marianne, Elizabeth, & Rob. With whom is interr'd the Body of Dame Grace Hay, Daughter of the Rev. Thos. Clavering, Rector of Piddle Hinton, in Dorsetshire, and Relict of Sir John Hay, Baronet, of the Kingdom of Scotland. She Died Feb. 1751, Aged 96.

D. 1699, Aged 50 years. And Peter and Elizabeth, Son and Daughter of the said John and Mary, lyes Buried under a Tomb-Stone in this Church Yard.

Near this Place are Deposited the Remains of Susannah Halcomb, (Second Wife of Mr. John Halcomb, and Eldest Daughter of William Peck, Esq. Late of the Wiltshire Militia,) who Departed this life 25 July, 1813, in the 51st year of her Age. Amiable Affection as a Wife, Ever-anxious Solitude, and unremitting Tenderness, as a Mother, Kindness and Sincerity as a Friend, Christian Serenity and Resignation, were virtues which, in an eminent Degree, adorned her Character, and prepared her for a Blessed Immortality Beyond the Grave.

On Monuments in N. Wall of N. Aisle.

Sacred to the Memory of that truly good-natured man, Mr. Stephen Willoughby, who, as he liv'd beloved of all, so by all was in his Death as much lamented. His Dutifull and Submissive Behaviour gained him the love and Friendship of his Superiours, His obliging and inoffensive carriage reconciled him to the love of all his equals, nor did his humanity towards his Inferiours, to whom it was ever extended to the utmost of his abilities, less gain him theirs. Thus did these, his social virtues, him endear to, and make him the delight of all his Acquaintance, But to no one more than to his very worthy friend, Mr. Henry Smith, of Bath, who has here placed this Monument to his Memory. He died the 13 Day of August, in the Year of our Lord 1746, and of his Age the 47.

Love is the Fulfilling of the Law.

James George Russell, whose Remains are Deposited in the Vault below, was born at Portsca, in the County of Southampton, and Departed this Life on the 15th Day of September, 1803, in the 30 Year of his Age.

In the Middle Aisle of this Sacred Place, and exactly opposite to this Humble Stone, rest the remains of Fanny Warner, with an infant Son. To embrace her many excellent qualities may appear ostentatious; not to mention some of them ungrateful. Suffice it therefore to say, she was one of the best of Wives, of Mothers, and of Friends. She died October 22, 1779, in the 45 year of her Age, and left behind her five Sons and two Daughters, the eldest of whom was too Young to feel its loss, the youngest only five weeks. The ties of Humanity, the social efforts of the Mind, the Virtues of the Kindred Soul, touch'd by the cold hand of Death, may droop like an Evening Flower; But the Gloomy Night and Darkness of the Grave shall quickly pass, the Morning of the Resurrection shall arrive, then shall they re-expand their forms, beneath the Glorious Influence of the Almighty, rejoicing in a Possessiou of an Eternal Day.

Sacred to the Memory of Martha, Wife of Nichol. Washbourne, Surgeon of this Town, who Departed this life the 13th Jan. 1817.

Why in such haste to meet death's cold embrace,
And thus pre-occupy a Father's place?
The spirit of the Child went quickly hence,
Ascending to its blissful residence;
Nor shall the sting of Death, nor strength of Sin,
Retard thy flight, dear Youth, to enter in,
Where Virtues guard, an Host of Angels wait,
The arrival of the just at the strait gate.

Tis not the Tomb, in Marble polished high,
The sculptur'd Urn, or glittering Trophics nigh,
The Classic Learning on an impious Stone,
Where Latin tells what English blus'd to own,
Can shroud the guilty from the Eye of God,
Incline his Balance, or avert his Rod;
That hand can raise the Cripple and the Poor
Spread on the Way, or gathered at the Door,
And blast the Villain, though to altars fled,
Who robs us living, and insults us dead.*

Heere lyes an Heire, who to an Heire was joynd.
 And dyinge left a little Heire Behind,
 Hard Hearted Death heerein was somewhat mild,
 Hee took the Mother, But Hee spar'd the Child,
 Yet the one's more happy farre than is the other,
 The Child's an Heire on Earth, in Heaven the Mother,
 Where with triumphant Saints and Angells bright,
 Shee now enjoyes her blessed Saviour's sight.

The gentle Heart, entombed beneath,
Ere it was child'd by Icy Death,
Glow'd with the warmth to Virtue dear,
Was open, generous, and sincere.

Griev'd at the tear on Misery's cheek,
In sympathy devoutly meek,
Which ne'er the timid sufferer task'd
By coldly waiting to be ask'd,
In silence the Relief was given,
And chronicle'd alone in Heav'n,
Whose watchful Angels set apart
The hallow'd Incense of the Heart.

To perpetuate the Memorial of an unbroken Friendship
of Forty years duration,
This Tablet is erected
by her affectionate and grateful Relative,
Thomas Smith.

Dauntsey, Kt. & Lord of this Place, and he was Nephew & heire of Henry Danvers, Baron of Dauntsey, Earle of Danby, one of his Maties privie Councell,
& Knight of the Most noble order of the Garter.
As he was of an auncient & noble Family, so of a Personage comely and beautifull, but of a singular Piety, Understanding, Sobriety, and Sweetness of Disposition, Whereby he was growne up to be the great Expectation of his Country, the hope & support of his Family, & the Comfort & delight of all his Relations and friends, but was snatched from them
all, to their inexpressible griefe, and irreparable losse, Dying Novemb. 19th : 1654, in the 21 yeare of his Age, & on the 2d of Decemb. following, (the day of his birth) was here (at the feet of his Deare Mother) buried. He gave all of his great estate in his power unto his Sister Ann Danvers, afterwards married to Sir Henry Lee, of Ditchley, in the County of Oxford, Baronet, by whom she had two Daughters, Eleanora and Ann. The Lady Eleanora, now Wife of James Lord Norreys, Baron of Rycott, & the Lady Ann
Lee, having in their Infancy lost both their Parents, their Futher dying before the birth of the Younger,
& their Mother in Childbed of her, no sooner understood that they were Heires, not only of their Mother's estate, but also thereby of his their Uncle's great Kindnesse, in a thankfull acknowledgment thereof, & to his memory and honor have at their joynt Charge erected this Monument.

To this shrine, traveller, attentive turn,
And pause awhile o'er Sainsbury's urn,
Of him who's now an inmate of the skies,
Beneath this tomb all that was mortal lies:
In honour firm, and faithful to his trust,
In every station moral, wise, and just;
A Magistrate observant of the laws;
A Briton, ardent in his Country's cause;
A tender Husband, Father, Brother, Friend,
Esteem'd through life, Lamented in his end:
Such Sainsbury was; now, 'midst angelic lays,
He wants no tribute of vain mortal praise,
Yet from oblivion such rare worth to claim
This honest marble here records his name:
Here shall his RELATIVES their visits pay,
And with their tears emblem his honoured clay,
And his example shall instruct our youth
To walk the paths of Virtue and of truth.

Separated awhile from that pure Spirit which once animated the now lifeless remains of faded Beauty, the Vault below contains all that was Mortal of Anna Maria Jenkyns, the beloved only Daughter of Richard & Anno Jenkyns. Having lived 14 years and upwards the Delight of all, and the Constant Source of inexpressible Happiness to her fond Parents, She left them, loaded with Grief, yet filled with Hope, on the 6th of December, 1778.

Christian Moralist, if the loss of a lovely Innocent, conspicuous for early Piety and filial love, for friendly

Affection and Goodness of Heart, for Purity of Mind and Chastity of Manners, with an Elegant Person, and a Strength of Genius and Understanding, which yielded the Most promising Hopes, be the object of rational sorrow, let the Tear drop, and hence take the unfinished Design of Female Excellence.

In the same Vault are deposited, in full Assurance of a glorious Resurrection to Life eternal, the Remains of Richard Jenkyns, Esq. the once happy Father of the above-named Anna-Maria, who closed his sorrows the 31 Day of July, 1806.

Near this Place lies the Body of Isaac Selfe, Esquire, of Beanacre, in this Parish, whose amiable Disposition and great Integrity, Recommended him to the Esteem of all who knew him. Nor was he less exemplary for Piety, Charity, and Hospitality. By his Second Wife Penelope, the Daughter and Coheir of Charles Lord Lucas (by Penelope, Daughter of Francis, Earl of Scarsdale,) he had three sons and three Daughters. By his Third Marriage he left no issue. He Departed this Life Anno Domini 1733, Aged 70 years.

In the same Grave Lie also the Remains of Jacob Selfe, of Beanacre, Esq. his youngest and last surviving Son, who, in regard to the Memory of the best of Fathers, Directed this Monument to be Erected. He died July 24th, 1757, Aged 62 years.

John Harris, Esq.

Citizen and Alderman of London.

Dead and Alive ! How so ? tis true :

Tis false, both first & last,

Like never heard : yet nothing new,

Tis present and tis past.

He was with us, yet now with God,

In life was dead, now lives

The burning bush and Aaron's Rod ;

The God who takes, & gives :

And faith and reason doe agree,

Though repugnant were,

That, in their several senses, we

May see them very cleare.

He died at Bath, the 25 day

This Church was Founded unto the Honour of Almighty God, between the years of our Lord 1400 and 1500. The North Ile was Built at the Cost and Charge of Robert Long and Edith his Wife. The South Ile, for the most part, was built at the Cost and Charge of Walter Leuces and Maud his Wife. The rest of the Church with the Steeple was built at the Cost and Charge of the Parishioners then Living.

West End of Nave.

Upon this Tower was a famous and lofty Spire, containing in height above the Tower ninety three feet, which a violent storm of thunder and lightning rent, and made a great breach therein, July 25, 1670. The Parish, willing to preserve such a noble and Complete Spire, endeavoured to repair the same by employing able workmen for that purpose, but such was the uncontrollable Providence of Almighty God, that, when the Spire was almost finished, and the workmen labouring thereon, another terrible Storm of Thunder and Lightning heppened on the 15th Oct. in the same year, which threw down the Spire, killed the two workmen labouring thereon, and beat down the Top of the Tower, great part of the Body of the Church, and part of the Iles thereof. The Reparation whereof cost the Parishioners, and some well-disposed Neighbourhood, the Sum of 420 pounds, and was finished in the year 1675. John Stileman and John Tucker Ch.-Wardens.

For Encouragement of Industrious Poor, John Brown, late of this Parish of Steeple Ashton, Joyner, did, by his last Will, Charitably give ye Rents & Profits of one piece of Ground, lying in Windmill field, in this Parish, containing 4 Acres (and let for £.5 10s. a year) for ever. And also did order ye sum of two Hundred Pounds to be laid out in other Lands within 5 miles of this Parish, and ye Rents & Profits thereof likewise to be Given for Ever unto four Poor Men of this Parish, having Families, to be equally divided amongst them, who must be of good repute, dwelling within 3 furlonge of the Croose here, and must be Members of ye Church of England, and such as have not at any time received Alms of ye Parish, but have bred up their Families by their own Industry, and are above ye Age of 45 years: and by his said Will did order Laurence Howell, Wm. Chapman,

Daniel Symbs ye Elder, & John Oatley, from & after ye 25 Day of March, 1722, to have ye Benefit of this Charity during their respective Lives; and that ye said Laurence Howell should collect and receive ye rents of ye said Lands during his life, and distribute them accordingly, the other 3 persons each allowing him two shillings a year for his Trouble of Collecting. Pursuant to ye above, ye said Sum of two Hundred Pounds hath been laid out in ye purchase of Certain Lands, being at Bower-hill, situate in ye Parish of Melksham, Containing 8 Acres, & let for 8 Pounds a Year. Within one Month after ye decease of either of the said persons above-named, or of any other Person who hereafter shall be admitted to share of this Charity, the Minister of this Parish for ye time being may present unto two of the next Justices of ye Peace (who have no Estate real or personal in ye Parish) any other Poor man dwelling, & so to be qualified as aforesaid; and if, by his Examination upon oath, such poor man shall appear so to be dwelling & so to be qualified, and ye said Justices shall so Certifie him to be, then such poor man so presented, paying to ye said Justices Clarkes 5 Shillings a piece for such Certificate, and allowing two Shillings a Year to ye receiver of ye Rents, shall be entitled to an equal share of this Charity: or if ye said Justices ever after such Examination, shall find that ye person so presented is not dwelling & qualified to be admitted & entitled to such share in his stead; But ye said Will provides that no more than four persons at one time shall be admitted to this Charity, and that after ye Death of ye said Laurence Howell, such person as hath longest been entitled to a share, shall be Collector of ye Rents, and that on ye Death of either of ye persons at any time entitled to a share of this Charity, his Widow, Children, or Child, shall be entitled to his Share untill the 25 day of March next after such his decease; and that this Table from time to time be maintained in repair out of ye Profits of ye said Lands, to prevent ye Misapplying of ye said Charity, and to encourage others to ye like. This Table was erected at ye Expence of his Widow and Executrix, and an attested Copy of his Will Given in ye hands of ye Churchwardens of ye Parish, to be by them laid up in ye Church Chest amongst othor parish Writings. This Church is a very large and beautiful structure, having, from its external form and interior decorations, more the resemblance of a Cathedral. It has a Chancel, Nave, and North and South Aisles. The Nave is supported on each side by four lofty pointed arches, resting on massy columns. The vaulting of the aisles is of stone, ornamented with handsome foliage; that of the nave and chancel is of wood, it appears to have been formerly of stone, but the falling of the Tower in 1070, probably occasioned its ruin.

W HADDON.

On a white marble monument in Long's Chapel.

Sacred to the Memory of Walter Long, of this Place of South Wraxhall, and of the City of Bath, Esq. only Son of Thomas Long, of South Wraxhall, Esq. by Mary his Wife.

Nature and Education combined to qualify him for gaining that esteem which the suavity of his Manners and an excellent understanding confirmed; while early habits of application, and a memory rendered powerful by judicious employment, gave accuracy to his judgment, and energy to his language. He was an elegant Scholar, a cheerful companion, and a worthy man. To his numerous tenantry he was conspicuously munificent; and when the dangers of the Country called for extraordinary aid, he nobly devoted the produce of their labours to the defence of their Liberty. He departed this life on the 10th day of January, 1807 in the 95th year of his Age, when his remains were deposited in this Mausoleum, with those of his sisters, Ellen Long, who died 20th of February, 1787, Aged 70, and Ann Long, who died 29th December, 1802, Aged 80. His Sister Mary Long died 20th August, 1776, Aged 66, and was born at Wraxhall: with these, and the surviving Sister Katherine Long, he shared the blessings of reciprocal and deserved affection.

Arms—Sable, a lion rampant between eight cross-crosslets argent.

Thou shalt come to thy Grave in a full Age, Like as a Shock of Corn cometh in his season. Job. ch. v. ver. 20. Sacred to the Memory of Catherine Long, Spinster, (the Youngest Daughter of Thomas Long, of South Wraxhall, in the County of Wilts. Esquire) whose earthly remains are Deposited in the mausoleum underneath. She died on the 15th of January, 1814, in the 97th year of her Age.

Endowed with a sound Understanding and active disposition, this worthy person exercised through a length of days those useful duties and Christian virtues which adorn both human nature and religion; for she was pious and devout towards God, abounding in works of Charity to her fellow-creatures under poverty or distress, and generous to her friends, acquaintance, and domesticks. Unaccustomed to scenes of public life, she sought for, and enjoyed in rural retirement, those Comforts, which not Riches, but a good Conscience only could administer, when joined to a steadfast faith in the gracious promises of the Gospel.

This Monument is Erected in testimony of the very grateful and especial regard which was justly due and borne to Mrs. Catherine Long by the Rev. Charles Coxwell, Clerk, and Thomas Bruges, Esq. on whom she was pleased to constitute her Executors and Residuary Legatces.

Blessed are the Dead which die in the Lord.

Could youth or strength keep off ye stroke of Death,
Then I had been as you are now on earth;
But, lo! I'm gone before to silent rest,
And in ye grave am equall'd with ye best;
Yea, free from toil, and care, and worldly Griefs,
Which load poor mortalls still without relceife;
From those I'm free, all tears are wiped away,
Glory attends mee now, and endlesse joy.

On a Mon. in N. Aisle.

To the Memory of Sir Charles Warre Malet, Baronet,
 (of Wilbury House.)

Whose merits and talents shed an additional lustre on the ancient and respectable family from which he sprung.

He died on the 23d of January, A. D. 1815, Aged 62.
 His mortal remains are deposited in a vault near this tablet.

At an early age he was appointed to the civil service of the Hon^{ble} East India Company in which he filled several very important Offices:
 He was for many years Resident Minister
 at the Court of Poona,

And for some time acted as Governor of Bombay.

By his liberal attention to the opinions, customs, and institutions,
 of the various tribes and casts of Hindostan,
 by his firmness, zeal, talents, and integrity,
 he not only advanced the interests of his employers
 in the Mahratta empire,
 But upheld the honour and character of his Country
 throughout the extensive Regions of the East.

Relieved from public cares,
 his active and patriotic spirit accompanied him in his domestic retirement:
 when his country was menaced with invasion by France,

He distinguished himself in animating the loyal yeomanry and peasantry of the district,
 and was intrusted with the command of the first battalion of the local-Militia of this County.

He was conspicuous for his domestic virtues,
Affectionate to his family, sincere in his friendships,
Charitable to the poor, and Benevolent to all.

As it was his avowed ambition to emulate the virtues of his Ancestors,
So has he left a bright example for the imitation of his Descendants.

First, granted him for life the Offices of Chief Clerk,
Register, and sole Examiner, in the Chancery of the Island of Barbadoes, and Clerk of the Crown, and Clerk of the Pence there to be executed by his deputies.
In the year 1715, he was appointed Solicitor
for the affairs of his Majesty's Treasury, which Office
He executed with distinguished zeal and uprightness for the Crown Interest till the year 1730, when he voluntarily resigned it, serving his King and Country afterwards as a Member of Parliament: lastly, well considering the brevity of human life, he chose to retire from all Publick business, and settled in this Parish, devoting the remainder of his days in Religious attention to the only and most important business, that of a future and happy immortality. He died in the 72d year of his Age, in the year of our Lord 1752.

GOD'S Deliverance;
or a Memorative of the FALL of the TOWER.

AMONGST

The many Eminent Mercies that the Inhabitants of St. EDMUND'S Parish have received, We may reckon the special Providence of God, whereby We the Parishioners and our Families were saved from remarkable and imminent dangers on the Sabbath Day, being June the 20th, 1653, when the Mayor, and many other Principal Inhabitants of the City, with a great multitude of Godly Christians, were met at St. Edmund's Church, for the Publick Worship of God, The Walls of the Tower thereof were become ruinous and broken, and (by the unwary attempts of some who, in order to the reparation, had uncovered the Roof, and undermined some Pillars) only . . .

fallen, the main Pillars did bulge out, and sensibly shake, the Clefts in the Walls were seen to open and shut with ringing the Serrion Bell that Day, neither were there any considerable props set to support it, so that Nothing but the very Hand of God did keep the Stones and Timber from falling until the next Day, That his own People were all secure at Home, neither Man, Woman, or Child, receiving any Hurt thereby. St. Luke, chap. 13. v. 4. When We consider what God hath formerly permitted when the Tower of Siloam fell,* and when the Church of Blackfriars, in London, fell upon a People, met as We were, for Worship, but in another Religion, when we apprehend what Danger We were in, Though not sensible of it at that Time, how sad an Overture would have been made, not in our Parish only, but in our City, Exodus, chap. 12. v. 30, like the Great Cry in Egypt, where almost every House would have suffered in the Death of so many, if God had mingled our blood with our Sacrifice that Day, and when We seriously recollect and set before Us all the Circumstances of this our Salvation; We cannot but break forth into Praise, and say, Revelations, chap. v. Salvation, and Glory, and Honour, and Power, unto the Lord our God; and in a lively Sense of the Mercy, desiring to perpetuate the Memory of it unto Posterity, that so the Generations to come may praise God as We the Living do this Day—We do Order and Appoint that the 20th Day of June Yearly shall be unto the People of St. Edmund's Parish a Day of solemn and publick Thanksgiving unto God for the same, And we beseech our Brethren of this and the following generations, Rom. chap. 12. v. 1st. by the Mercies of God, to present themselves living Sacrifices wholly acceptable unto God, in their reasonable Service of him that Day, as long as there shall be one stone upon another in St. Edmund's Church, and an inhabitant left in St. Edmund's Parish. And We do further Order, that either in the Windows, or the Walls, or the Gates, of our New Builded Church (if not in all of them) there be made, as shall be thought fit, some MONUMENTS of this late Deliverance, Isaiah chap. 60. v. 18, That our WALLS may mention the Salvation, and our GATES the Praises of the LORD.

able. She had a rare and surprising understanding,
and an uncommon quickness and strength of parts,
which were not sensibly impaired by ye decay of old Age, but were daily improved by ye experience of many years. As She was blessed with an extraordinary length of days, so she made the true and best use of that Blessing; for, by a regular Devotion, and constant Piety towards God, by Charity, Good Will,
and Beneficence towards her Neighbour, She endeavoured to work out her Salvation here, that She might obtain Life and Immortality hereafter. She died the 20th Day of August,

In the year { of her Age 96.
 { of Our Lord 1724.

There Rest, Deare Child, in Peaceful Bliss,
In this thy sleeping toome,
That time, by Mouldring thy Cropt budd
To dust, may make a Roome,
That my dead Corps, when down it drops,
May once Againe embrace
Thy blessed Dust, that in mine eyes,
Was once a Lovelie face.

EPITAPH.

C lose in the bosome of this Mournful Tomb,
H urry'd from Earth to his Eternal home,
A n early Trophy of Death's Conquering Power,
R eposing, waits for Nature's last great hour.
L ife, like a Morning Vision fled away,
E rc we could perfectly perceive the day,
S o soon we lose what long we'd have to stay.
F ate tooke no pity on his tender years,
R egarded not his parents pious tears,
A ll their vain grief the victim could not save,
N or keep their boy from the devouring Grave;
C rown'd with his native Innocence he fell,
K ings Crown'd with Lawrel seldom dye so well.
L et age and youth from hence this maxim know,
I f Heaven commands, the best are forc'd to go,
N othing that's good is permanent below.

EVERLEY.

Upon the North Wall of the Nave.

In Memory of Francis Dugdale Astley, Esquire, the munificent Founder, Builder, and Donor of this Church, and of all the Ecclesiastical buildings appertaining to it, of the Patteshull branch, He was lineally descended from the very ancient and honorable house of Astley Castle, in the County of Warwick, distinguished by King Henry VI. with the most Noble Order of the Garter. In the year 1776, he married Mary, second daughter and co-heiress (with Dorothea Lady Lethbridge) of William Buckler, of Boreham, in this County, Esquire, by whom he has left three sons, survivors. He married, secondly, in 1805, Anne, daughter of Henry Geast, Esquire, and Niece of Richard Dugdale, Esquire, of Blythe Hall, Warwickshire, who was descended from Sir William Dugdale, Knight: by Her he had no Issue. Reader, reflect, that disregard of truth is, in places like this, the most unhallowed, and the plain detail of character is all that the best of men can or would approve or allow, the name on this marble lives, and will long live, in the memorials of his actions: the good deeds of the encourager of planting and husbandry: of the resident and considerate land-owner: of the active and upright magistrate: the public-spirited friend of the British King and Constitution. Go deeper, reader, and thou mayest learn that he was loved and revered for his exemplary discharge of the duties of Husband, Father, Friend, and Christian.

He died the 28th of April, and was deposited in the Vault beneath, May the 4th, 1818, Aged 76 years.

Of Sir John Evelyn, of West Deane, in ye County of

Here Lyes {what, Reader, thou shalt seek in vaine
In other tombs.} a Long liv'd happy man ;
Whose mind and Body kept so just a pace
Thru' all ye various turnings of his Race,
That neither fail'd : till ye Soul went away,
His sence remain'd, and Death out run decay.
To him ye Great, To him ye meane repair'd,
Th' one's Adviser, and the other's Guard :
Peace by him dwelt, 'twas his delightfull toyl
To make New Friends, and Foes to reconcile,
And what he taught he did himselfe commende,
Kind to his Foes, and Faithfull to his Friends ;
In publick and in Private Acts of Love,
Such as He now a Saint exerts above,
His Life was spent, And when Late Death
Sent welcom summons for his breath,
Zea bore him upward, and his Active minde,
Broke out in Prayer, and Left his Dust behind,
20th Day of June, in ye yeare 1685, & of his Age 84.

This being erected by his Beloved Daughter, ye Honorable Mrs. Elizabeth Pierrpont.

Arms—A griffin passant.

Thirty Five, when grown full Ripe for Action,
Then She Forsooke It, if not unkindly, saye
Untimely, too Readily, too Soon ;
So some Suns arc over cast at Noone.
Yet twas Deriv'd frome High and Noble Stocke,
Crown'd wth an Earledome on Eyther side,
Ther of Shrewsbury, of Kingston here s^o od
Heire Apparent unto. This had in its Veines,
Beside ye Blood of Both, their Seminal,
Their Bullion Vertues, too readic Coynable
Into Exploits as Greate as Eytber Ancestor's
Had, but Occasion Call'd, w^{ch} was (and was The only thing y^t was) Here wanting—

Healthie and sound, It Pass'd thro' Italie, & France,

Of a very Generous & Cleare Temper,
Perfectly Loyal to's Prince in all Sub & Supra . . .
euer Pre-Judging for Authoritie :
Of Great Reverence & Pietie to's Parents,
Of a most entire Affection to's Wife,
Of Great Indulgence unto his Children,
Of Unmovable Constancy to his Friend,
Learned, much beyond ye Gentlemen of his Age,
in Language & Arts, chiefly Mathematical,
Spake Little, but to Purpose, Could not Chide,
Suffered in its Displeasure more than did,
Observ'd Things well, Not to Find Fault but Praise,

DOWNTON.

On a Monument against the north wall of Chancel.

To this deservedly beloved and respected Memory of Anthony Lord Feversham, Baron of Downton, who died at Barford, in this Parish, where he had principally resided, Juns 18th, 1763, Aged 68 years, and was interred in this Chancel.

He was the only surviving Son of Anthony Duncombe, Esq. by Jane, Eldest Daughter and Coheir of the Hon^{ble} Frederick Cornwallis, 2d Son of Frederick Lord Cornwallis, of Eye, and Nephew and Heir of Sir Charles Duncombe, Lord Mayor of London. On his Return from his Travels into foreign Parts in 1721, He was Elsted to Parliament for the City of New Sarum, as he was also in the years 1722, and 1727; to the two succeeding Parliaments, he was returned for the adjacent Borough, which he continually represented, till raised in 1747, to the House of Peers. By his first Marriage with the Hon^{ble} Margaret Verney, Daughter of George Lord Willoughby de Brooke, he had several Children, who died without Issue, particularly a Son George, whose premature Death is Lamented by his Parents on a Munumont near adjoining. He intermarried, secondly, with Frances, Daughter of Peter Bathurst, of Clarendon Park, in this County, Esq. and, thirdly, with Ann, Daughter of Sir Thomas Hales, of Howletts and Beakshourne, in the County of Kent, Bart. (who wedded, secondly, William, Earl of Radnor,) and by each of these latter Marriages, left a Daughter surviving, named after their respective Mothers; the younger of whom, Anne, the Wife of Jacob Earl of Radnor, consecrates, with the highest filial affection, this Monument.

Against the South Wall of Chancel.

To the Right Hon^{ble} Margaret Lady Feversham, only Daughter to the Right Hon^{ble} George Verney Lord Willoughby de Broke, died October 9th, 1755, in the 59th year of her Age.

LADY FEVERSHAM'S CHARACTER.

She had all the advantages of Birth and Fortune, improved by an Education suitable to her Rank and Quality. In her Youth, she was remarkable for the Beauty of her Person, and the sweetness of her Manners; and her Virtues, throughout the whole extent of her Life, gained her the esteem and admiration of all who knew her. Her conjugal and maternal affection, the ease and Dignity with which she administered the affairs of her Family, the courtesy and affability with which she received the very lowest of those who had access to her, and her compassionate tenderness to all who wanted, and were within the reach of her good offices, conspired to form one complete evidence of an excellent understanding, conducted by a mind naturally good, and thoroughly influenced by religious principles, which she received from her Father. Her Behaviour under her Afflictions gave the full lustre to this assemblage of good qualities. Bereaved of all her Children (the last of which, and the sole remaining hops of the family, was just upon the verge of Manhood), She bore it with the most perfect resignation to the will of God, and under a constant state of ill health for thirty years, she never lost the natural cheerfulness of her Temper, and hardly seemed to feel her own pains, though she was most sensibly touched with the trouble and concern which she gave to those about her, especially to her Husband, who loved her with the most sincere Affection, and was her constant unwearied Companion in all her sufferings. After the most happy union between them for near forty years, when the time was come that was to put an end to their mutual happiness, she met Death, not with impatience of Life, nor with perturbation, but with a fortitude of mind which could only be inspired by her blessed Redeemer, in whom she trusted, and in whose arms we will leave her pious Soul to rest.

Arms—Quarterly, first and fourth per chevron ingrailed three talbots heads erased; second and third guttee, on a fess three doves conjoined: impaling, three cross in chief vair ermine.

Against North Wall of Chancel.

To the Memory of the Right Honourable Frances Lady Feversham, Fifth Daughter of Peter Bathurst, of Clarendon Park, in the County of Wilts. Esquire, and second Wife to the Right Honourable Anthony Lord Feversham.

Her conduct and behaviour, both before she married and after, were discreet, sensible, and prudent: Her conversation was, at times, easy and cheerful; yet, in this, as in every thing else, she took care to preserve a Dignity which made her equally respected, honoured, and beloved. She died in the flower of her youth, before the vices or follies of the world had taken any hold of her; and so little was she captivated with outward pomp and grandeur, or altered in the native Innocency of her Heart by the great addition of all wordly enjoyments which her Marriage had brought along with it, that, to her honour, let this favourite saying, (which is here set down almost in her own words) ever be remembered of her: "The vanities generally attendant on wealth and titles, will, too soon, I fear, overtake and overrun me, in spite of all my endeavours to keep them back; but I will remain what I was, and what I am, as long as I can." This good and valuable young Lady, with a perfect Resignation to the will of God, and in full and steadfast Faith in Jesus Christ for the pardon and remission of her sins, Died the 21st day of November, 1757, in the 26th year of her age, leaving a sad and sorrowful Husband behind Her, and an infant Daughter by him but ten days old.

Arms—Quarterly, as the preceding: impaling two bars ermine, in chief three cross pattee.

Against south wall of Chancel,

To the Memory of George, the Son of Anthony Duncombe, Esq. of Barford, and the Hon. Margaret Verney, his wife. He dyed in the flower of Youth, regretted by all who knew him, having, by a tender and affectionate respect, endeared himself to his Parents, and by an obliging and courteous behaviour, which was natural to him, gained the love and esteem of all his acquaintance; and if Modesty and sweetness of temper, joyned with good sense, are signs of a Generous Mind, and when found in Youth will prognosticate what the Man will be, he had given great hopes that he would one day prove a valuable friend both to rich and poor, and an Ornament to his Family and Country.

He was born to the Expectation of a great Fortune, but that was not to be discovered by any part of his behaviour, which was untainted by ye prospect of affluence before him; a great indication that, had it pleased God to prolong his Life, he would have enjoyed Riches with the same moderation of mind with which, in his younger Days, he viewed them at a Distance.

As aggravating as these Circumstances are to those most nearly concerned in the loss, yet they afford them this Comfort, that he lived long enough to give proofs of a mind furnished with principles of Honour and Virtue. He dyed with a perfect resignation to the Will of God, and a firm trust in his blessed Redeemer, and is (as they confidently hope and trust) far Happier than they could make him.

This Monument was erected by his Mournful Parents; the only thing they ever did unwillingly for for their Son, but it was the last and only Gift they could bestow. He was born the 7th Day of March, 1722, He dyed the 9th Day of August, 1741.

Arms—Quarterly, first and fourth per chevron engrailed, three talbots' heads erased; second and third guttee, on a fess, three doves conjoined.

' To our Trusty and well-beloved John Grubb, Esq.
' CHARLES, R.

' Trusty and well-beloved, Wee greete you well. Though Wee are unwilling in the least degree to press upon our good subjects, yet we must obey that necessity which compels us, in this publique distraction, when our Owne Money and Revenue is seized and deteyned from us, to lay hold on any thing which, with God's blessing, may be a meanes to preserve this Kingdom. Wee must, therefore, desire you forthwith to lend us the sum of two hundred pounds, in Money or Plate, for our necessary support, and the maintenance of our army, which we are compelled to raise for the defence of our Person, the Protestant Religion, and ye Lawes of ye Land. Wee have trusted this Beirer to receive it of you, and Wee doe promise you, in ye word of a king, to repay it with Interest. And of this Service we cannot doubt, well knowing you are too much concerned in the safety of our Person, and the preservation of the publique Peace, to neglect this opportunity of expressing your care of both,

' Given at our Court, at Oxford, this 17th Day of February, 1642.'

* He married a Miss Eyre.

DEVIZES.

St. John's.

On Monuments in North Chancel.

Josiah Eyles Heathcote, Esq.

To whose Memory this Monument has been Erected, was the only Son of George Heathcote, Esq. of London, by Maria Eyles, the Eldest Daughter of John Eyles, Esq. of Southbroom House, near Devizes. He was a Gentleman whose Courtesy, Hospitality, Polite manners, and animated conversation, united with the highest Principles of Honour and Probity, made him pleasing to, and esteemed by, his Equals, While his unbounded Benevolence and Extensive Charities, made him Equally beloved and revered by his Domestics, and drew down on him the best Blessings on this side of the Grave, those of the Poor and Destitute. A fit of apoplexy terminated his exemplary Life, on the 22d Day of August, 1811, in the 63 year of his Age. Nor was his sudden Death, though appalling, justly to be lamented, saving him, as it did, from the languors and sufferings of lingering disease, and prepared, as he happily was, by firm faith, lively, though humble, hope, and truly Christian piety, to appear before the awful tribunal of his Saviour and his God.

Arms—Quarterly, first and fourth ermine, three roundels charged with a cross, surcharged with nine roundels; second and third, a fess ingrailed, in chief three fleur-de-lis.

Near this Stone are deposited the Remains of Edward Eyles, Esq. fourth and only surviving Son of John Eyles, Esq. and Mary, his Wife, who having spent the earlier part of his Life abroad in places of public Trust, in which he acquitted himself with honor and reputation, passed the remainder of it in that retirement which was necessary to a constitution impaired by business and injured by a foreign climate, and in that peace of mind which ever attends on the religious discharge of all the Duties of Life. When abroad, he married Mary, Widow of the Hon^{ble} Governor Gumley, and Daughter of Sir John Witterwrong, Baronet; but she dying six months after their Marriage, he continued a Widower till his Death, which happened on the 13th of March, 1792, in the 79th year of his Age. His only Nephew and Niece, in gratitude for the regard expressed towards them in his last Will, have jointly caused this Monument to be erected to his Memory.

On Monuments in south Chancel.

Sacred to the Memory of George Heathcote, Esq. a man of strict honour, integrity, and Christian piety, in private life, a warm friend and diligent magistrate, an able and strenuous assertor of the liberty of his Country, which he manifested in his Conduct when Lord Mayor of the City of London, and as a Member of the British Senate, to which he was chosen in three successive Parliaments; but, observing the torrent of corruption too powerful to be opposed by the utmost efforts and examples of a few steady patriots, he chose to retire from all public employments, and to dedicate the remainder of his Life to the cultivating those Virtues in the rising generation which he had the mortification to see neglected and despised in the present, and in promoting the arts and sciences, of which he was an admirer and patron. Thus employed, he ended his days on the 7th of June, 1768, Aged 63 years, in that peace and tranquillity ever attendant on conscious virtue, to whose memory his affectionate Wife, Maria Heathcote, caused this Monument to be erected.

Arms—Ermine, on three pomme as many crosses or; impaling argent, a fess engrailed sable, in chief three fleur-de-lis of the last.

Sacred to the Memory of Mrs. Maria Heathcote, Widow of George Heathcote, Esq. and Daughter of John Eyles, Esq. and Mary his Wife, of Southbroom House, near this Borough. She was born on the 12th day of June, 1707, and Died on the 5th Day of Jan. 1792. Reader, this Marble is placed here to remind thee, if thou knewest her, to inform thee if thou didst not, that the Christian piety of this excellent woman shone conspicuous in all the relative duties of life. Her Son pays this tribute to the Memory of his beloved Mother, hoping that her example may not be forgotten by some, nor lost to others.

Arms—Ermine, on three pomme as many crosses, or; impaling argent, a fess engrailed sable, in chief three fleur-de-lis of the last.

Sacred to the Memory of Thomas Middleton Trollope, Esq. (eldest son of Sir Thomas Trollope, of Casewick, in the County of Lincoln, Bart.) In the year 1759, he married Isabella, one of the Daughters of Sir John Thorold, Bart. of Cranwell, and had Issue five Sons and three Daughters, who were living at the time of his Decease, the 27th Day of April, Anno 1779, Ætatis 59. He was a Christian from conviction, and his conduct through life was, in every respect exemplary, so that not only his Family and Relations, but all who knew him, revere his Memory, and Deplore his Death. An impartial magistrate, to the Poor a Friend; in his own sufferings (which were many) resigned and patient, yet ever ready to alleviate the sorrows of others, and zealous to promote, as far as in his power, the welfare and happiness of all mankind. In testimony of esteem and affection, and to perpetuate a character so worthy of imitation, his afflicted Widow caused this Stone to be inscribed, Anno 1779.

To the Memory of Elizabeth and John, Wife and Son of John Shergold, M. A. Rector of this Church. She having lived greatly beloved, dyed greatly lamented, on Jan. 13, Anno { Dom. 1725

On a Monument in S. Aisle.

In the Chancel of this Church lie Interred the Remains of John Garth, Esq. Son of Colonel Thomas Garth, of Harold, in the County of Bedford, by Elizabeth, Daughter of Thomas Colleton, Esq. April 27th, 1732, he was chosen the Recorder, and Feb. 26, 1739, elected Representative in Parliament for this Borough of Devizes. Zealous in its Service, and attentive to its Prosperity, this honour was repeatedly conferred upon him for the remainder of his Life, ever esteeming it a real honour to represent a Borough Distinguished for its Loyalty, Freedom, and Integrity. To the sedentary way of living (which he fell into from an early and continued love for the pleasures of literature), the illness was chiefly owing that occasioned his Death, which happened on the 28th of December, 1764, Aged 63. With his Contemporaries his Virtues are in Remembrance: to Posterity the Example of his Life may be Recommended; his Wife losing by his Death the tenderest Husband, his Children an affectionate Father, his Constituents a faithful Servant, and his Country an useful Citizen, and truly virtuous Man. In testimony of her sincerest and most dutiful respect, this Monument is erected to his Memory by his afflicted widow Rebecca Garth.

Near this place are deposited the Remains of Bridget Nicholas, Wife of Edward Nicholas, Daughter of Oliffe and Joan Richmond, of Ashton Keynes, in this County. She died Jan. 12, 1754, and her reward is with her, for she was distinguished in every relation of life, a dutiful Daughter, a prudent Wife, and a tender Parent, ever a sincere and pious Member of the Church of England. Though left a Widow in the bloom of life, when youth and pleasure are too strong incentives, these she subjected to the interest of her only Child: the culture of his Mind and improvement of his Fortune engrossed her Cares; yet of such exemplary justice, that, though left in circumstances which would little more than supply the decent accommodations of life, she generously gave up the greatest part of her income to discharge Family Debts she had no share in contracting, disdaining to be exposed to the piercing taunts of undischarged creditors, nobly rescuing from infamy succeeding generations, and preferring fair Fame and Virtue, the Flower of Honour, to the vain glare and false charms of Wealth and Luxury. Thus provident without parsimony, charitable without ostentation, cheerful without levity, and hospitable with economy, she united those graces which rendered her esteemed by all: It were an injury to the Publick to deprive it of so fair an example, an injury to her Memory not to give this just Character of her, and not to attempt it unpardonable in him who has derived such inestimable benefits from it. Her only surviving Son, E. R. Nicholas, M. B. erected this Marble as a sincere testimony of the regard and esteem he bears to the Memory of his ever-honoured Parent.

Underneath her lie interred her two other Children, John and Jane, who died in their Infancy.

In Memory of Jenny Nicholas, Wife of E. R. Nicholas, M. B. Daughter of W. and K. Neute, of Devizes. She died Oct. 12, A. D. 1760, Aged 38.

Her life, though short, in every station was a most fair pattern of excellence and perfection, for it was her utmost endeavour to be, as she had every requisite to make her, as good a Daughter and as good a Wife, as good a Parent and as good a Christian, as Woman possibly could be. She was to her Husband the best of Wives; her affectionate assiduity in his illness appeared to be as much her pleasure as her Duty: such was her painful cares, such her anxious concern for his health, that she daily impaired her own, and proved, by her too early end, that innate gentleness of temper, enlarged benevolence, unaffected modesty, and spotless purity of heart, exempted her from the power of the grave; yet constant and devout attention to the sacred purposes of religious worship had so prepared her, that in her last hour of trial, strengthened by prayer, by faith supported, she with

Why do thy pensive kindred join
In vain, Dear Boy, to mourn thy fate?
The fleeting joys of thee and thine,
And pleasure of too short a date?
Why cruel Death's untimely haste upbraid,
And weep the wound its savage stroke has made?

How frail, alas, thy fairest bloom!
Henceforth be every tear suppress;
Or shed for joy, that from the tomb,
Thou soar'st to mansions of the blest,
From vice, from pain, from earth to heaven remov'd,
Thy memory honour'd, as thy life belov'd.

3.

Thy morals pure in opening youth,
For learning thy unfoild desire,
Thy gentlest manners, strictest truth,
Shall future times to virtue sire;
While here the letter'd marble speaks thy name,
And pays this last just tribute to thy fame.

In Memory of William Long, Esq. of Melksham, who Departed this Life June the 16th, 1773, in the 64 year of his Age.

Like as a father pitieth his own children, even so is the Lord merciful unto them that fear him; for he knoweth whereof we are made, he remembereth that we are but dust. The days of man are but as grass; he flourisheth as a flower of the field; as soon as the wind goeth over it, it is gone, and the place thereof shall know it no more; but the merciful goodness of the Lord endureth for ever and ever upon them that fear him. Part of the 103 Psalm.

MONUMENTAL INSCRIPTIONS

In the Vault beneath
 Are the mortal Remains of Jacintha, Youngest daughter of the late Thomas Hele Phipps, Esq.
 of Leighton House, in this Parish,
 who departed this life of a typhus fever,
 Feb. 17th, 1819, Aged 33 years.
 In the short career of her Earthly Pilgrimage,
 She exemplified the exercise of every Female Virtue,
 And left to her afflicted Relatives
 A bright example for Christian imitation, by whom it may be truly said, she
 "did not live in vain,
 But lived to die, and died to live again."

ANTHONY SELF gave to the Poor of Dilton forty Pounds, to be as a Stock for them, and desired that the Churchwardens should yearly, at Easter, choose two honest men of Dilton, and that they, with them, should put forth ye forty pounds for ye best advantage, and that every Christmas ye Overseers, and ye two persons should, out of such advantage, buy apparel for such of the Poor as they thought fit.

WILLIAM GILBERT gave Twenty pounds, to be as a Stock, and the Interest thereof to be distributed yearly in Bread amongst the Poor.

CHRISTOPHER PIERCE gave ten pounds, to be as a Stock for poor labourers of Dilton, not having parish relief. The Interest thereof to be distributed yearly, on ye second day of January, amongst them.

JOHN CABLE gave five pounds to the poor of Dilton; the one-half of the Interest thereof to be bestowed on them yearly at Easter, and ye other half to be added to the principall.

WILLIAM TURNER gave Forty-five shillings; ye one-half of ye interest thereof to be distributed amongst ye poor of Dilton yearly, at Easter, and ye other half to be added to ye principall.

In March, 1679, JOHN WHATLEY, Constable of Westbury Hundred, by ye consent of ye Inhabitants of Dilton, did, with ye said Moneys & ye increase thereof, purchase, in ye names of Mr. Ivic, Minister, and Stephen Whatly and William Withy, Chaplewardens, of Dilton, three closes, called Croft and Corsley, containing by estimation twelve Acres, and a parrock, called Church Parrock, containing two Acres, in Beckington parish, Somerset, as appeareth by the Deed thereof remaining in this Chapple. THE VICAR and Chapplewardens of Dilton, and ye ten Trustees, viz. Thomas Phipps, May Hill, William Wilkins, Roger Carter, Thomas Whatly, John Whatly, George Withy, Giles Adlam, William Rendell, and Thomas Hill, and the survivors of them, concerning the Rents and Profits of ye said Lands to observe these rules and directions following, as appeareth more at large by another Deed remaining in this Chapple, viz. They are yearly, for ever, to raise (if they can) out of the same rents and profits so much money as the yearly Interest of ye said severall sums given by the Donors above-named, would amount unto, and ye same Money to employ according to ye above expressed intention of ye said Donors. If any overplus of moneys shall be after such employing, such overplus is to be employed for ye poors benefit in such manner as ye Vicar and Chapplewardens and ye Trustees, or ye major part of them, shall think fitt. If the same rents and profits shall not in any year amount to so much as ye yearly interest of the same severall sums given by the said Donors would amount to, then out of the same rents and profits, the said directions of ye said severall Donors are to be pursued and performed as near as can be, regard being had to ye quantity of ye moneys raised by ye same rents and profits. The Vicar and Chapelwardens are not at any time to lett or manure ye said lands, or any part thereof, or do any thing concerning the same without ye consent of ye trustees or ye survivors, or major of ym first had.

The Vicar, Chapplewardens and Trustees, are to meet in the Easter week yearly at this Chapple, giving notice thereof on Easter Sunday in Westbury Church and this Chapple, and consult concerning ye letting and managing of ye said lands for the poors benefit, and to examine how ye rents and profits have been employed for ye preceding year, and to employ (as afore directed) ye moneys raised by ye rents and profits y^e unemployed; and if any of ym be absent at such meeting, y^e such of ym as shall be present may consult and act as fully as if all were present. When the greater number of ye said Trustees are dead, ye survivors are, from time to time for ever, to get some of ye substantiallest Inhabitants in or about Dilton in ye room of ye deceased, so that ye said Directions of ye Donors may be ye more faithfully performed.

Keep conscience clear, avoid all broils and strife,
Forgive offences, lead a virtuous life,
Delight in doing good, and be content
With what allotment Providence hath sent.

Also of Edward, Son of William and Ann Pearce, who died June 4th, 1811, Aged 37 years.

Farewell, vain world, I've seen enough of thee,
And now am careless what thou say of me,
Thy smiles I court not, nor thy frowns I fear,
My cares are past, my body resteth here;
What fault thou see in me take care to shun,
And look at home, enough there's to be done.

In this Church are two stone statues, but much mutilated: one of them appears to be a knight templar.

In Memory of Roger Townsend, of this Town, Professor of Music. Died June 20th, 1730,
Aged 39 years.

Our Maker's Praise his soft melodious Tongue,
By nature led, by Heaven directed, sung:
Harmonious Soul, thou always didst aspire
To imitate (now join) the heavenly Choir,
By hearing Angels sing, their notes improve,
And raise devotion to seraphic Love;
God's goodness view, enjoy, adore, proclaim,
And everlastingly extol his name.

From the Church garden heare below,
Them to secure from heat and showers,
In heavenly paradise to grow.
Here rests a virgin's earthly part,
Whom winter overtook in spring,
Whose soule, now freed from Satan's dart,
We hope doth Hallelujah sing.
Let persons in their younger years,
With her their Great Creator mind,
As they would be disarmed of fears
When death their outward man shall find.
