

Jr., and William Baskerville. In Cumberland County is recorded the will of John Baskerville, dated January 16, 1788, proved Sept. 22, 1788, who names brothers Samuel, George, Richard and William Barber Baskerville and sisters Mary Bass and Magdalene Trabue. He was evidently son of John Baskerville, the son of George² Baskerville.

Several members of the Juxon family, to which the famous Archbishop William Juxon belonged, came to Virginia. The will of the archbishop's brother, John Juxon, of Alborne, Sussex Co., England, Esq., dated Dec. 15, 1654, and proved with a codicil May 30, 1655, is published in the New England Gen. and Hist. Rec., LII., 122. It names his sons William and John, the former of whom is under 21 "and beyond the seas," but appears to have returned to England and is called "nephew Sir William Juxon" by the archbishop. John Juxon, probably the brother of Sir William Juxon, describing himself "as citizen and salter of London," and Sarah his wife, widow of Thomas Webb, citizen and clothworker of London, who died about 1681, sold, in 1685, to Rev. Rowland Jones, of Queen's Creek in York County, Virginia, 400 acres with the brick house built thereon, situated near St. Andrews Creek (now Carter's Creek), and Queen's Creek, heretofore the land of George Lee, merchant, and Daniel Wild and by them sold to Robert Spring, upon which land the said Spring built "a fair brick house" and by Spring sold to Sarah Webb on account of a debt due her and Martin Deynens, of London, merchant. This John Juxon, therefore, had an interest in land adjoining the Timsons and was doubtless the father of Mary Timson and Elizabeth Milner. If this is correct, he had a son William Juxon, and a third daughter Sarah, who married first Walter Whitfield and secondly William Russell. From this will of Mrs. Elizabeth Milner, it seems that one of the portraits mentioned in the inventory of William Timson, Jun., (son of William Timson) was that of his uncle John Timson, who died in London without issue. This portrait, with its companionpiece representing a Lady, is now the property of the Misses Garrett, of Williamsburg.
