Jesse James & mtDNA Testing

Forensic scientists used mitochondrial DNA to help identify the remains of outlaw Jesse James.

It had been a long standing rumor that the infamous outlaw, Jesse James, may not have been the man who was shot and killed on April 3, 1882, while cleaning a picture frame on the wall of Jesse James' home in St. Joseph, Missouri. Some claimed that someone else had died on that day, and that Jesse James, who was living under the alias Thomas Howard, lived on and fathered more children with his wife, and 1st cousin, Zee Mimms. Robert Ford, a member of the "James brother" gang had shot a man in the back of the head on that day, instantly killing him. Ford had conspired with Thomas T. Crittenden, the Governor of Missouri, to bring James to justice. The remains of the man who had

Dear Project Members,

I would like to thank all of you for your support and kind emails over the last few months. Everyone has been extremely helpful with providing information about their lines and I am pleased to say that approximately 80% of the project lineages are now available for research at the new website. The others will likely trickle in as time goes on.

I hope all of you have visited the new project website at www.webbdnaproject.org. A new feature has been added called "Album." Here you will find member submitted family photos as well as images of "Webbs of Note." If you have "early" photos of your Webb family, Webb family homes, etc., and would be willing to share them, please email them to me and I will include them in the Album on a rotating basis.

I hope everyone is having a wonderful summer!

been shot were removed to Jesse James birthplace in Kearney, Missouri.

Twenty years later, on June 29, 1902, the remains were moved again, but this time to a family plot at Mt. Olivet Cemetery in Kearney. In 1978 the original burial site at the James farm was excavated and hair and bone fragments were found. The bone fragments were analyzed by Dr. Finnegan at Kansas State University, and then were reburied at the James farm. In 1995 the remains that had been removed from the family farm and placed at the family plot at Mt. Olivet Cemetery, were exhumed for DNA analysis. The question remained: was the man who had been shot in 1882 actually the legendary Jesse James, or had the shooting been a plot designed to allow Jesse James to escape?

*“The question remained:
Was the man who had been shot in 1882 actually the legendary Jesse James, or had the shooting been a plot designed to allow Jesse James to escape?”*

In order to do mtDNA testing on the remains of Jesse James, they would need, for comparison, a living person who was a direct descendant of Jesse James' mother, Zerelda Cole James. Mitochondrial DNA [mtDNA] is only inherited from the mother. It passes from the mother to her children, both male and female. But, it is only females that can pass their mtDNA to their children. Jesse James had a sister named Susan, and it was her two living descendants, her great grandson and great-great grandson, who were asked to donate samples for analysis. mtDNA samples were obtained from two molars from the exhumed grave at Mt. Olivet and also from two hairs that had been excavated from the original grave at the James farm. The testing and comparison showed that the mtDNA sequences were identical with those obtained from the living relatives.

Although the mtDNA testing did not absolutely prove that the remains are those of Jesse James, it has narrowed the possibilities down to three:

1. The remains are those of Jesse James.
2. The remains are those of a maternal relative of Jesse James.
3. The remains are those of an unrelated person with the exact mtDNA sequence as the two living descendants of Jesse's sister, Susan.

Because the second and third possibilities are so remote, it is believed that remains are indeed those of the legendary Jesse James.

Family Finder, FTDNA's New Genealogical Tool

Family Tree DNA's new Family Finder Test allows you to find family in ANY of your lines up to 6 generations. You can be male or female to take the test, and your results will be compared to the Family Finder test database. Your matches can be sorted by degree of relationship, from the closest matches to the most distant. In the near future the Family Finder test will also offer a feature called Population Finder where you will be able to know your basic ethnic make-up by percentage. The Family Finder test can be ordered through your personal page at FTDNA.

Pg 94, The Early History of Weymouth

One of the principal authorities of the early religious history of Weymouth was the Hon. Christopher Webb, who furnished some historical information at celebrations in the Old North Church, and from his information is gained the statements concerning the old church buildings. From Him we learn that in 1682 a new church was build, which was forty-five feet long, forty feet wide, and the walls twenty feet high. This was built on the north side of what is now the railroad track, one hundred and fifty rods from the Weymouth Heights depot. It was built by Jacob Nash for L280, but in 1751 it took fire and was burned to the ground.

Pg 122

Going along the Bay Trail from what is now Weymouth Landing to the Mill Creek we found it a most delightful walk. ON each side were the beautiful trees, and through them we could see the river in its silver beauty, while above us was the bright sky shining down through the trees. Web passed the places where later the Cowing house, or Wales Tavern, the Arnold Tavern and the Tufts Mansion were. Then past the site where afterwards stood the home in which James White lived, also the site of the Webb house, and along where, tradition says, the first house stood in which Capt. Thomas White lived, he whose duty it was to defend with his force of men the town from hostile Indians.

These early settlers in Weymouth we find by grants of land spreading out beyond "Old Spain" into other parts of Weymouth, and we find in later years the following names of settlers having land in "Old Spain:" John Green, Nicholas Ford, John Torrey, William Pitty, John Bicknell, Benjamin Richards, Jonas Humphrey, Ebenezer Pratt, Henry Waltham, James Smith, Maurice Trufant, John Whitman, Nicholas Phillips, John King and Samuel King. Then in the region now called Weymouth Heights we have the names of Thomas White, Richard Webb, James Nash, Nathaniel Humphrey and Robert Lowell.

...In the fall of 1838 subscription of stock was started in Weymouth and Braintree, and a meeting of the stockholders was held at the Hall of the Hotel in Weymouth, Dec. 27, 1838. Maj. John W. Loud was chosen moderator and John A. Hobart clerk, and it was voted on motion of Asa B. Wales, "That we proceed to build a meeting house for Religious Worship." The building committee chosen were Asa B. Wales, Ira Curtis, Adoram Clapp, John W. Loud and John A. Hobart.

The committee were instructed to select and purchase a site, and they purchased the lot where the church now stands on Washington Street of Mr. Asa Webb. Stephen S. Foye was the contractor and John A. Hobart the draftsman.

When the Revolutionary War came on Captain Sams served as captain on the American side. Then when settlements began in what became subsequently Buncombe County Captain Sams brought his family across the mountains and took up his residence in the new region. At first he lived for a short while in the neighborhood of a brother-in-law, John Webb, on North Hominy near the present village of Candler. While living there he superintended the erection of the North Hominy Baptist Church, the oldest of its denomination in the county.

Benjamin Webb, one of the first Justices of Perry County, settled on Boone Fork, 1797, later Perry County now Letcher. He was Sherriff of Perry in 1831-32 and a December term of Court that year thought he should be fined for not attending court since he was High Sheriff of Perry County. Distances and bad roads did not seem to be any excuse to the courts for his absence.

The history of the Webb family begins with James Webb, an Englishman who came to America before the Revolution. He was in the War for Independence as an Aide-de-camp to General Washington at the battle of White Plains. He was shot through the body and was left for dead, but he recovered from his wound, and subsequently followed his son Benjamin to Kentucky. James Webb married a sister to Daniel Boone's mother. One of the characteristics of the Webb family is long life. James lived to be 106, and it will be noted that others of this family attained an age close to the century mark.

Benjamin Webb, son of James, was born in 1701, probably on the east coast of Maryland. He possessed an adventuresome spirit that led him into various occupations. As a Young man, he was for a time a slave trader. From Maryland he moved to Buncombe County, North Carolina, where seven families who had heard of Kentucky and had "Western fever" started to follow the Boone trail through Powell Valley and over the mountains to the head of the Kentucky River. They located on the Kentucky River near the mouth of Boone's Fork in 1796 or 1797. Later they moved to what is now the coal town of Mayking, then known as Bottom Fork, where Benjamin lived the remainder of his life. He was one of the first Justices of Perry County, which then composed a large portion of Eastern Kentucky, and also was Sheriff of Perry County in 1831. It was his custom to walk to the state capital each year to make settlements of his accounts.

His wife was Jennie Adams, who came to Kentucky with the Webb family from North Carolina when a young woman. She died at the age of 97 and is buried at the Webb family cemetery at Mayking.

One of Benjamin's grandsons was the late Col. N. M. Webb of Whitesburg, for many years owner and editor of the Mountain Eagle.
