A Cousin is Found

Two Webb Surname DNA Project members discover the untold story of their family connection through DNA:

My name is Brian Jay Webb, my friends call me Jay, and I am kit # 259526.

It all started back in 1998. I really wanted to find out who I came from and how long ago. I had tried searching LDS records, ordering microfiche, waiting weeks for it to arrive, and spent hours searching and getting little results. One of my uncles also spent many years searching our family history, talking with the older members of the family, and talking notes from the family Bibles. My uncle spent many weeks on the road visiting other states, going to the offices of records and searching leads to our history. One day he sent me all that he found and this inspired me to dig further. And so, in 2005, I joined Ancestry.com.

After 5 years of search at Ancestry I gave up, hit a brick wall at my John Webb b. 1705, and then in 2012, I reopened my quest and bought a subscription to Ancestry, but still there was that brick wall. I searched every

Dear Project Members,

I would like to thank Jay Webb and Jeffrey Robinson for sharing their very personal and heart-warming story in this issue of the Bulletin. It is a reminder for everyone to look closely at those non-Webb, one step or exact matches at the 37, 67 and 111 marker test levels. In most cases, these matches may not be significant. To pursue an actual connection is not for the faint-of-heart, but it can be rewarding beyond measure as illustrated by Jeffrey and Jay's experience. Congratulations to Jay and Jeffrey!

In the coming months I will be concentrating on updating the website. If you have additions, corrections or see that I have left something off, now is a good time to let me know. Thank you!

Eileen

Webb I could find, trying to link to deeper roots, and I did manage to find one more batch of records. I found in Charles Parish, Virginia, a record of John Webb's birth and his two brothers and two sisters, from the parents of Terrence Webb and Mabel.

At last I thought I was making headway, but no, there was a new brick wall, and in my constant searching a website kept coming up: The Webb Surname DNA Project. I read through its pages and thought to myself, “I think I will join and see if I can find help.” After making contact with the administrator, I was told I should do a Y-DNA37 test at FTDNA, so I did.

As with most people who do a DNA test and get their results, I was quite confused. It just wasn't clear what and who I was connected to. So I contacted all the Webb's that I matched and low and behold they were 1st, 2nd and 3rd cousins, and we all had the same family tree information, but still, there was that brick wall.

After a couple weeks, I did an upgrade to 67 markers, and waited a few weeks more for those results, and when they did come in, I was really confused. I now had a guy named Robinson that was so close to me, he was either my lost brother or a first cousin. But there is no Robinsons in my family. I'm a Webb.

So, I made contact with this gentleman and got an answer from his wife who said that he didn't know who his real father was, but that he was born in 1959 in Ventura, California. I told her that he was so close a match he had to be a Webb, and most likely my first cousin. We wrote a few times, and then contact was broken, and I kind of gave up. But it was always stuck in the back of my mind. One day my father and I were talking about DNA and about some of my matches, and I told him about this one man who's name was Robinson, and that he was so close a match he could be my brother. I asked my dad, is this true? He assured me he was not my lost brother, but that got us talking and we just had to figure out who this could be. I told my dad when and where this Robinson was born, and my dad said, “I know who it is, I know who his father is!” We talked it over for days, and as we did I began to see the picture, and we knew that my dad's brother had to be Robinson's father. You see, my uncle lived in Ventura in that very year, 1959. At this point I failed to make contact with Mr. Robinson and moved on.

There was also a man in my matches list named Smith who was 3 steps from me in 67 markers, but his paper trail ended about 1740. Well, that couldn't be right, my paper trail ended about 1664 and all the children were accounted for from 1705 to present, so now here was an even a bigger puzzle I had to figure out!

After 2 months of digging and reading, a probability started to form: that my John Webb b. 1705 and John Smith b. 1734 were half brothers. I had found the death record of Mabel Smith who died 1735. What I was able to assemble was, my Terrence Webb married a Mabel Hunt in 1703/4, they had 5 children, John b. 1705, Mary b. 1706, Sarah b. 1708, Edgar b. 1710 and William b. 1718, and here's the weird part: Terrence

Webb died just 2 week after his son William was born in 1718, Mabel remarried in 1719 to a John Smith who is really Terrence's brother, John Smith and Mabel have a son in 1734 [John Smith Jr.], and a few months later, John Smith Sr. died, and in 1735 Mabel died, leaving her son, John Smith Jr., to be raised by is half brothers and sisters. Wow! Some of this probability was backed by paper, and so I made contact with Mr. Smith and told him what I had found about our families, and also about Mr. Robinson.

Little did I know that Mr. Smith and Mr. Robinson had been in close contact for a year or so, and Mr. Smith wrote Mr. Robinson right away and told him that I knew who his father is. Within a few hours, Mrs. Robinson sent me an email asking me to tell them everything I knew and how I had come to know who her husband's father was. I told her it would be better if we could talk on the phone and so she sent me their phone number. We had a two-hour conversation and I told them everything I knew and what my dad had told me.

Here is Jeffrey Robinson's side of the story [Kit # N44178]:

I am Jeffrey Thomas (Webb) Robinson. I didn't know that anything about my birth was unusual until, when I was twenty years old, I had a daughter who died two weeks after she was born of Trisomy 13, that is she had three of the thirteenth chromosomes, and had many birth defects, most serious among them were the ones in her heart. My mother told me that if it were a hereditary disorder, I might be the source. I was surprised, because I thought I knew all about my heritage. The doctor told me this wasn't hereditary. So, I didn't concern myself with it at the time. A couple of years later, for reasons that are still not clear to me, my mother decided to tell me more of the story. She told me that the man I thought was my father was in fact, not my biological father. She refused to reveal the identity of my true father, and told me that all I needed to know was that he was a prominent member of the community and had two daughters.

Later, I divorced and remarried and my new wife Becky and I decided to try to figure it out. I was an investigator by trade, and I thought this could not be that difficult. I was wrong.

Becky asked my mom why she named me Jeffrey Thomas Robinson, and my mom told her that there had been a murder in Ventura of a small boy by another boy, and that it had been a very traumatic event for the entire community in Ventura. So, in honor of the boy who died, who's name was Tommy, she named me Jeffrey "Thomas" Robinson. But that information didn't mean anything to either of us at the time.

This was not something that we could openly talk about with my parents. We knew that my father had to know that I wasn't his biological son, because someone told us that my father had been in the Navy and was deployed to the South Pacific for nine months and returned to find my mother six months pregnant.

My mother's sister told me that she thought it could be someone my mother worked with at that time. We contacted the personnel department at the organization where she had worked, and they gave us the number of the previous director of personnel in her department.

That person was very helpful. She gave us three names of people she thought my mother might have dated. We set out to locate these people. One of them lived about two hours away from where we lived at the time in Northern California.

Then my parents came to visit, and I cornered my mother and pushed her for a name. The name she gave me was one of the names we had obtained from the lady from personnel. We knew where he lived and it was about a two-hour drive from where we lived. We went to his place of business and talked with him, and he turned out to be a wonderful person, with a wonderful family. But he was not my father either, as we would find out later. We had a DNA paternity test done and it came back excluding him as my father. It could not be him. I was heartbroken, and felt horrible about disrupting these good people's lives for something that turned out to not be true. I lost my passion for the search to find out the identity of my biological father.

Then, in 2007, National Geographic came out with its Genographic Project. They were doing Y-DNA tests to help people understand the migratory patterns of their ancestors. As a gift on my birthday that year my wife gave me a membership to that project. It required a buccal swab of my mouth that was then sent to National Geographic. They tested 12 markers that were known mutations and I got my results. I never thought it would tell me who my father was, but I did learn that many of my ancestors were from Scotland, Ireland and England. Once I received the results, I was given the option of uploading my Y-DNA to something called the Family Tree DNA Project for free. So I did.

Family Tree DNA allows you to communicate with other people with whom you have matches and who have agreed to share their email addresses with you. I never really understood exactly how this worked, but it allows you to understand that you have a common ancestor with the people you have matches with within a certain number of generations. Over time, DNA testing has progressed, and Family Tree DNA has allowed testing for an additional fee on a greater number of markers: 25, 37, 67, and 111. Whenever we could afford it we upgraded to allow testing on a greater number of markers. But from the beginning I had a match with one person, but with some distance, and we have communicated with him over the years. He had no idea how I could be a match to him. We didn't know what my true last name should have been, and had no way to find out. A lot of this search has to be through the last known surname when you are dealing with Y-DNA.

Then, in 2009, I had an exact match to a Webb. I contacted that person and he didn't seem to know anything that could help me. I was disheartened and quit paying attention to the Family Tree DNA project, but my wife kept pushing to try to find out what she could.

Finally, in February of this year, I received an email from Jay Webb with whom I also had a close match on 67 markers, and who had the same last name as the person I attempted to communicate with in 2009. But Jay wanted more information from me and I had no information to give him other than I didn't know who my father was, but I did tell him where and when I was born. Jay tried to communicate further with me at that time, but I was still afraid to have a repeat of my previous experience, so I didn't answer.

Unbeknownst to me, Jay continued to pursue the search because he was working on his clan's family tree. He couldn't understand how it could be that they had me in their wood pile. Our matches were so close that I was closer to him than his known third cousins. He sent an email to the Mr. Smith, who we had been communicating with since joining the Family Tree DNA Project, and his email said that he thought he knew the identity of my father. Mr. Smith forwarded Jay's email to me, and my wife answered it asking him what he thought he knew and why he knew it. Then Jay and I spoke on the telephone. He told me that he and his father had had many conversations to try to figure out the identity of my father, and they believed his uncle, Cecil Norwood Webb, now deceased, was my father. When Jay gave us his name, my wife and I immediately went to Cecil's obituary and saw that he was a member of the IBEW in Ventura, CA for 55 years. Cecil Webb had a son named Tommy who was killed in a shooting accident with another boy while they were playing Army.

We knew that had to be the connection because both my "father" and maternal grandfather had been members of the IBEW and it was a very small town. We told him that they worked at Channel Electric and he went to ask his father if that company rang a bell with him. It did. That is where Jay's uncle Cecil had worked as well. It was a very, very small company, and these three men had worked together.

Then Jay sent me a photograph of Cecil Webb and his family. I look exactly like Cecil Webb. Everyone who knows me and sees the photograph thinks it's me dressed funny.

We went to Ivy Lawn Cemetery with our children and visited Cecil and Tommy Webb's graves, and also to my maternal grandfather and grandmother's graves that are near them. They are all in the same cemetery. And then we went to the library to find information about the death of Tommy Webb. It was a tragedy. Tommy died at the age of ten while playing "army" with a friend and a loaded firearm. Finally all the pieces fit. We knew that this was the truth.

We then went back and spoke with my mother and she confirmed our suspicions. So, if it weren't for Family Tree DNA, and for the persistence of my wife and my newly found cousin, my true heritage would still be a mystery.

Since then my cousin Jay and I have spoken on the phone several times. We are planning to get together and go to the "Scottish Highland Games" in a couple of weeks. I am really looking forward to getting to know my cousin.

Thanks to the science of DNA and Family Tree DNA and the hard work they do, we have been able to solve our lost relationship and end a thirty-year quest to find closure. But it doesn't end there, it is only the beginning, Jeffrey has half sisters we hope one day he will be able to meet, and I have a new cousin I will get to meet soon.

There are still mysteries in our family history, and with the help of DNA and all the groups at Family Tree DNA we will solve it; we may not have a paper trail, but we will have a genetic trail.

DNA is undisputedly the best aid we have for finding connections where none were thought to exist.

Webb, of Oldstock, Wiltshire

[John, Esquire]

Created Baronet, April 2, 1644

The first we find this family, is [a] William Webb, of Salisbury, merchant, who lived temp. Hen. VIII. He married Catharine, daughter and Heir of John Barrow, Esq; by whom he had John Webb, and William Webb, of Painsplace, com. Dorset, Esq; which William, the second son, had issue, Sir William Webbe, Knt. Who had issue only one daughter and heir.

John Webbe, of Oldstock, com. Wilts, Esq; eldest son and heir, left issue two sons; Sir John Webbe, Knt. and John Webbe, of London; whose issue male are yet in that place.

Sir John Webbe, of Canford, com. Dorset, was Knighted I Jac. I. [with his cousin-german Sir William Webbe] [b]. He married two wives; first, a daughter and coheir of – Faulconer of Oxfordshire, by whom he had no issue: His second wife was Catherine, daughter to Sir Thomas Tresham, of Rushden, com. Northampton, Knt. by whom he had issue three sons[c] viz. Sir John Webbe, Bart. Thomas, who died unmarried; and 3. Major-General William Webbe, under King Charles I. in the civil war, who died a batchelor.

Sir John Webbe, eldest son and heir, was advanced to the dignity of a Baronet 20 Car. I. as a reward of his family's having both shed their blood in the King's cause, and contributed, as far as they were able, with their purses, in his defence, as the patent expresseth [d] He married Mary, daughter to Sir John Carryl, of Harting, com. Sussex, Knt. and had issue four sons, Sir John, Thomas, William, and Peter; the three last died batchelors. Sir John died anno 1680. and lies buried at Oldstock.

Sir John Webbe, of Oldstock, eldest son and heir, succeeded him; and married [e] Mary, sole heiress to her brothers, John and William Blomer, Esqrs. and only daughter of John Blomer, of Hathrop, in com. Gloucester, Esq; [by Frances, daughter to Anthony Browne, Viscount Montague] and had only one son John. He died anno 1700, and is buried at Oldstock.

Sir John Webb, his only son, the present Baronet, succeeded his father in dignity and estate; and married Barbara, one of the daughters and coheireesses of John, Lord Belasyse, baron of Worlaby, [second son of Thomas Belasyse, Lors Viscount Fauconberg,] by his third wife the Lady Anne, daughter to John Powlett, Marquis of Winchester, and sister to Charles, late Duke of Bolton; [Lady Webb, died march 28, 1740] by whom he had issue two sons and five daughters, I. John Webb, Esq; who hath had two wives, I. Mabella, the youngest daughter of sir Henry-Joseph Tichborne, Bart. by whom he has two daughters, Mary and Barbara, both living; his first Lady dying Sept 1727, he married 2dly, Anne, daughter of Henry, Lord Teynham, by whom he hath no issue; and 2. Thomas Webb, Esq; who married Anne, daughter of William Gybson, of Wellford, in the county of Northampton, Esq; and has two sons, now living, John, and Joseph. The five daughters of Sir John were, I. Anna-Maria, who married jammed Radcliffe, late Earl of Derwentwater; [and was mother of the present Lady Petre] 2. Mary, married to James, Earl Waldegrave, [both which daughters are deceased;] and 3. Barbara, now living, married to Anthony Browne, Lord Viscount Mountague, of Cowdry, in Sussex; also 4. Winifred, unmarried; and 5. Bridget, who died unmarried, 1727.
